RALPH MCGILL

Something Like Old Day Coach

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., June 21—Once upon a time our squadron of destroyers on maneuvers put into San Juan, Porto Rico. A chief petty officer, near retirement after some 17 years in uniform, had become a good friend. I was late going ashore and I found the chief at a roadside cafe-bar just across from the docks, having a beer. "Aren't you going on up town, Chief?" I asked. "Naw," he said, his voice filled with boredom, "all ports are alike."

All airports are alike but the people never are. The way to fly is in the local where the aircraft is hardly well up before the lights go on and it comes down again. On non-stops the passengers are sealed in mentally. On local, milk-run schedules it is something like the old day coach travel. There are crying babies and bananas, shoe-box lunches, much talk and much going and coming of children to the rest rooms and the cold water spigot.

It was like that as we flew across Georgia, Alabama, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas into Colorado. It was at Ft. Smith the passengers began to look and talk Western. At Tulsa a heavy-set Indian man in neat blue pants and a white shirt, got on with his silent little boy also Sunday dressed. At Oklahoma City they got off and a dark-haired, olive-complexioned Spanish couple got on with a small baby who howled, until the mother, quite matter-of-factly, undid her dress and nursed him until he was content and went to sleep.

There was talk of oil and wheat and of the rains, which came some weeks ago to break a drought which was, in some areas around Amarillo, four years old.

Harry Truman

There was talk, too, of Harry Truman. News of his operation in the early morning of Sunday had made the morning papers along the way in bulletin form. "You hear about old Harry? I'm worried about him, dogged if I ain't. You reckon he's gonna die?"

"No, I just heard. My wife was listening on the radio just before I left. She told me. He made out fine. They took out his gall bladder and appendix."

"That's good. He used to irritate me but I find myself thinking he wasn't maybe as bad as I thought."

"Well, one thing, they never bluffed him none."

"I'll tell you about him. He loves his folks. You take a man that loves his wife and his kids and ain't afraid to show it, well, you can figure he ain't so bad himself."

And so it went. Not once, all day, as we flew across a good section of the continent, did I hear a single word about Guatemala, the Russians, the Chinese, or the Koreans. I don't know if that's good. But I didn't. There was talk of politics, rain drought, oil, wheat and cotton.

The Land

At the Amarillo airport. I talked with an old man in a sun helmet, who said his name was Joel Hendrix and he farmed. He was out to see the planes, his wife was inside looking around. I told him I had never seen the land look prettier than I had seen it from the air coming in.

"I guess so," he said. "First rains in about four years came in April. We've had more. Some were almost like floods. You see them ponds? Been dry three years."

We talked till the plane was called. We lifted and within a half-hour the river beds were dry and the grass was not too green. The foothills of mountains began. There was no sign of the ecstasy of germination and young growth as seen near Amarillo. But, within another half-hour a black front moved in and off on the horizon rain could be seen spilling from it. The winds tossed us a bit. The man next to me at the window put his face against the glass.

"I hope we get it," he said. And so, as always, spellbound by my country, we came to Colorado Springs. It was 9:45 p.m. Eastern time, but here, in Mountain time just 7:45. Racing the sun is fun.

Maine Picks Sen. Smith In Landslide

PORTLAND, Maine, June 21 (AP)—Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, long-time foe of Sen. McCarthy, today scored a landslide victory over Robert L. Jones, a candidate she charged was "planted" in Maine's senatorial primary by the Wisconsin Republican.

With 532 out of 626 precincts reported, Mrs. Smith had tallied 76,003 votes to 15,398 for Jones. The Republican balloting in the first primary since the Army-McCarthy hearings had been closely watched by political observers as a possible indication of McCarthy's political strength.

The 56-year-old lady senator from Skowhegan, who incurred McCarthy's animosity with her 1950 "declaration of conscience" against the methods of some congressional investigators, had charged during the campaign that "outsiders" placed Jones in the race.

Jones, a 34-year-old Biddeford lawyer making his first bid for elective office, had campaigned on a platform of "Americanism" which he said was personified by McCarthy.

Nomination in GOP Maine is tantamount to election. As the tabulation feasted the halfway mark, Jones refused to concede defeat. But he ended speculation that he might run for the Senate as an independent.

"I am now and always will be a Republican and give my complete support to Republican principles," he said.

More Than Ike Asked
WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—The Senate Appropriations Committee today approved a $1,982,469,761 budget for the Labor and Health-Education Welfare departments for the year starting July 1. This was 17 million dollars more than the Eisenhower administration requested.

Democrats Want To Boot Jenkins After He Invites Help of McCarthy

WASHINGTON, June 21—The tenure of Ray H. Jenkins as special counsel to the Senate's permanent subcommittee on investigations in the Army-McCarthy row was threatened seriously today by Democratic members resentful at the Tennessee's weekend venture into the political arena.

In a television show yesterday, Jenkins said he would accept the help of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy if he should seek the Republican nomination for the Senate from his home state. A boom to nominate Jenkins on the Republican ticket for the Senate seat of Estes Kefauver, Democrat, has developed as a result of his prominence in the televised inquiry.

It appeared certain that Jenkins would be called upon to answer a charge of having disqualified himself for the task of preparing a synopsis and statement of the issues that the committee would use in writing its report on the investigation. One Democratic member said he would raise the question of bias in favor of McCarthy as grounds for disqualification. Other members of the subcommittee expressed shock and disbelief at the statement by Jenkins before the "jury" had come in with its verdict.

Today Jenkins enlarged on his statement to say he would also accept help from Secretary of the Army Stevens if he "graciously volunteered to assist me in any campaign I might undertake."

Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.), temporary chairman of the subcommittee, said he did not believe the statement would disqualify Jenkins. He explained that the task he will urge Jenkins to assume at an executive meeting at 11 a.m. tomorrow morning was not that of writing the report itself but to abstract the 2,000,000 words recorded during the hearings and to present a synopsis of data relating to the salient issues in the controversy.

2 'Go-Getting' Cats Will Be Chuted Into Malaya Fort Besieged by Mice

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya, June 21 (AP)—The Royal Air Force prepared today to parachute two cats to a mouse-plagued British fort in the Malayan jungle. The cats made a test jump from 350 feet yesterday and landed on their feet. The garrison of the jungle fort in north Malaya sent an urgent call for relief from mice and rats destroying food supplies. The two cats chosen for the mission have reputations as go-getters. One is an off-white, the other a speckled sort of dun.

Farms Get Stiff Curbs; Wheat Cut

By WILLIAM M. BLAIR
New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, June 21—The Eisenhower administration set up the most rigorous farm controls in the history of federal price supports today.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson said he greatly regretted the action but declared there was no other immediate choice in view of the surplus of grain and the government's high price-support program, which has brought much of it to federal storage bins.

Benson coupled the tough control program with a further cutback in wheat production for 1955, dropping the acreage nearly 13 per cent to 55,000,000 acres. This is the minimum permitted by farm law.

He also called for marketing quotas on wheat for the second consecutive year and set July 23 for wheat farmers to vote on whether they wanted such a system of quotas in return for continued price supports.

Under today's control action, farmers must comply in 1955 with all federal acreage allotments in order to be eligible for subsidies on any one crop. The country's largest producers, in addition to satisfying this "cross compliance" edict, also will have to comply with a "total acreage allotment" on their land.

At present farmers must comply only with acreage quotas on any one crop to get a federal price guarantee on that crop. By extending this across the board, the government seeks to prevent farmers from taking land that has been made idle by controls on one crop and shifting it to other surplus-producing crops.

2,000,000 AFFECTED
About 2,000,000 farmers will be affected by next year's rigid controls.

The Department of Agriculture expects that 10,000,000 acres in such "surplus" products as wheat, corn and cotton will be put out of production. Nearly 30,000,000 acres were eliminated from production this year by crop controls.

There appeared to be no disposition by farm bloc members of Congress to try to block the rigid control program, although some asserted it would be hard on many producers. Rep. Clifford R. Hope, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, and others believed the administration's action would strengthen the farm bloc's

Harris Endorses Hand for Governor, Praises His Segregation Proposal

Roy Harris, Augusta political leader, Monday night endorsed the gubernatorial candidacy of Speaker of the House Fred Hand.

Harris, a member of the Georgia Education Commission, said he endorsed Hand's "sensible" plan for preserving public, segregated schools in Georgia as well as his candidacy.

Harris praised Hand's school proposal in an article in The Augusta Courier, Harris' political paper, which termed "silly" the plans submitted by Lt. Gov. Marvin Griffin and Ben Garland, who are also seeking the governor's post.

BACKS HAND
"I said some time ago that if Jim Gillis did not make the race I would support Fred Hand. That still goes," Harris told The Atlanta Constitution by telephone from his home in Augusta.

Reached at his home in Pelham, Hand said:

"I am very pleased, Roy Harris has always worked for the advancement of education and other worthwhile projects of the state."

"I predict that others interested in the welfare of the state will fall in line with him and support my candidacy."

DRAFTS PLANS
Hand added that he was not ready to announce his campaign plans or campaign manager.

Harris said the four main points in Hand's proposal are:

1. To keep the state constitution as it is because it does not authorize taxes for any schools except segregated schools.

2. To keep the appropriations bills as it is because it cuts off money to any county that has mixed schools.

3. To continue the building program.

Counterblow Launched by Arbenz Army

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, June 21 (AP)—Col. Carlos Castillo Armas set up an anti-Communist government inside Guatemala today and called for the unconditional surrender of President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman and his government.

Castillo, leader of invading forces striking from Honduras, made his demand after issuing a communique claiming that his revolutionary forces had captured several important cities and had penetrated deep into Guatemala.

BATTLE BACK
Castillo's demand coincided with a Guatemalan government communique which said that federal troops had launched a general counterattack against the invaders. It said the invaders were hurled back during the first encounter near Gualan in Zacapa State.

The government said the Guatemalan battle started shortly before midnight last night.

"The army, with regular troops, well trained and equipped with modern armament, attacked the rebels' position and forced them to fall back after overcoming stubborn resistance," the communique said. "Latest reports indicate the enemy was retreating in that area."

Castillo claimed his forces were sweeping across Guatemala almost without opposition.

"GOING HOME"
"This is not an invasion, properly speaking," he said. "We are just thousands of Guatemalans who are forcing the doors of our own country to return to our homes."

"We demand the unconditional surrender of Arbenz and his Communist group because we are not willing to compromise with those who never showed any mercy towards the citizenry whom they tortured and murdered in the prisons," Castillo said.

Details of the fighting were scarce, but at U.N. headquarters in New York, the Guatemalan government announced that it will "proceed immediately" with full-scale fighting against the insurgent forces of Castillo and his followers.

Guatemala announced its intentions in a cablegram to Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., of the United States, current president of the U.N. Security Council.

Information reaching Tegucigalpa indicated that the rebel forces had occupied several small towns inside Guatemala. It was agreed that the town of Esquipulas, some nine miles from the Honduran border, had fallen to the rebels.

ARBEZ FOES
Castillo denied that foreign elements were taking part in the fight against the leftist Arbenz government.

"In the liberating army," he said, "there is not one officer or soldier who is not a Guatemalan."

Castillo's communique announced that he would lead the fight against the leftist Arbenz government.

Fair, Warm Promised for 2 More Days

Blue skies with only a few scattered clouds welcomed official summer to Atlanta Monday at 5:55 p.m. and the weatherman predicted the beautiful welcome for the outdoor season would continue at least through Wednesday.

Tuesday and Wednesday are expected to be mostly fair and warm without the threat of scattered showers.

With summer also came a string of 90-degree days, however. Tuesday's high is expected to be about 90, with a cool low of 68 Tuesday night rising to a sizzling 92 Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson today threw his support behind President Eisenhower's proposal to expand foreign trade by cutting tariffs 15 per cent in the next three years. He praised steps along these lines taken by Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) and other Senate Democrats.

Americas Wait Result Of U.N. Ceasefire Call

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution
WASHINGTON, June 21—The Inter-American Peace Commission took official note this afternoon of Guatemala's charge that Guatemala is a victim of aggression, but, at Guatemala's request, deferred action.

Guatemala asked the five-nation commission to hold up action until the results of yesterday's ceasefire order by the U.N. Security Council could be observed.

Alfredo Chocano, the Guatemalan charge d'affaires, following telephone instructions from his government, sent the request to the committee. That was a few hours before its members, Argentina, Brazil, Cuba, Mexico and the United States, met at the Pan American Union at 5 p.m.

The Security Council's ceasefire order, he held, does not deprive Guatemala of the right to self-defense. "For the victim, that overrides the ceasefire," he said.

Guatemala's request that the Inter-American Peace Committee defer action means that Guatemala has chosen the Security Council rather than the Inter-American body as its diplomatic battleground.

In another Washington development today, the State department said the government of strife-torn Guatemala had pledged to "make every effort" to protect about 1,200 U.S. citizens in that country.

The department spokesman, press officer Lincoln White, said Guatemala also has agreed to let the Americans leave the country if they want to, but "up to the present time this does not appear to be necessary."

Other officials said U.S. Ambassador John Peurifoy at Guatemala City has full power to act if evacuation of U.S. citizens should become necessary.

High Death Rate Linked To Smoking

Cigarette Use
Ups Risk—ACS

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21 (AP)—Cigarette smoking men run up to twice the risk of dying of cancer and heart attacks at ages 50 to 70 than non-smokers, the American Cancer Society reported today.

This life-shortening effect applies not only to lung cancer but other types as well.

At these ages, the death rate among cigarette-smokers from all causes is 75 per cent higher than among non-smokers.

MASS STUDY

These are among the first findings from a mass study seeking to learn any effects from smoking on cancer and other diseases.

It involved interviewing 187,766 healthy men, aged 50 to 70 in nine states, and checking death certificates of 4,854 who have since died.

The results were described to the American Medical Association by Drs. E. Cuyler Hammond and Dan El Horn, director and assistant director, statistical research, of the ACS.

They said they had not expected to have significant results for another year, but that the information already obtained seemed so important it was being announced now.

YOUNGER MEN

They said it is "a matter for speculation" whether the findings apply to men younger than 50, or to women who smoke.

They wouldn't say what their own speculations are.

Their evidence indicates a cause-and-effect between cigarettes and heart attacks and cancers, they added.

There have been numerous reports previously linking cigarettes with an alarming rise in lung cancer. Numerous experts have said they felt there has been no proof of such a link. Atmospheric pollution also has been suspected as a cause.

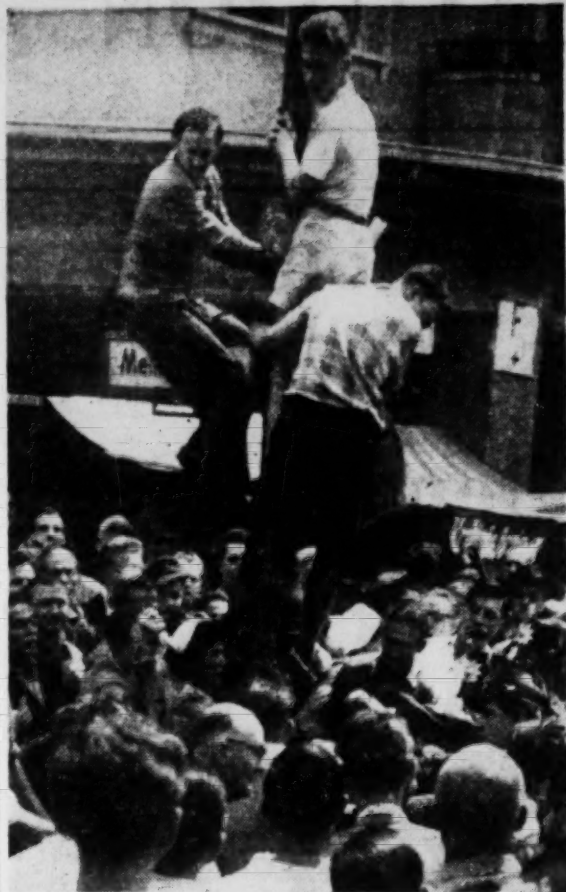

DEFINITE DATA

The widespread survey to question men as to whether they had ever smoked, practically never smoked, or smoked cigarettes, pipes, cigars or combinations of these was aimed at getting more definite information.

So far, the smoking of just pipes or cigars, or both, shows little or no effect on death rates except perhaps for cancer in general, the report says. But this point needs further study.

The heart and cancer risk seems to rise with cigarette consumption by the men studied, the report finds.

For those who smoked a pack-a-

Red Attack Aids 400 To Flee French

SAIGON, Indochina, June 21 (AP)—

The bulk of 500 Vietnamese war prisoners held in a French Union detention camp at My Tho have broken free in an uprising staged with the help of a guerrilla attack on the guards.

About 100 were reported killed, wounded or recaptured after the action before dawn Saturday. But 400—potential reinforcements for the Communist-led rebel campaign to overrun Indochina—melted into the tropical bush and marshlands of the area 30 miles southwest of Saigon and vanished.

The military sources said several companies of guerrillas raked the compound at My Tho, near Saigon, with heavy fire. Simultaneously, the rebels inside overpowered their guards in bitter fighting, cut through the barbed wire enclosing the camp and fled.

French Union reinforcements arrived too late for the fighting, but are seeking to run down the fugitives.

In the Tourane area, on the seacoast about 360 miles northeast of Saigon, French patrols carried out fruitless searches for five American servicemen seized by the Vietnamese a week ago south of their base.

In the Red River Delta 18 miles northwest of Hanoi, French tanks, artillery, planes, gunboats and Vietnamese infantry today pounded eight villages suspected of harboring infiltrating Vietminh.

Elsewhere in the delta, small French Union patrols clashed with infiltrated Vietminh at a dozen different points last night and early today.

Peiping Tells Fate of 83 Americans

GENEVA, June 21 (AP)—Red China

briefly raised the veil of secrecy surrounding the fate of 83 Americans held on the Chinese mainland to announce today the death of a civilian and to list some military personnel as dead or missing.

The Chinese Communists, in an exchange of information with the U.S. delegation to the Geneva conference, reported they were holding 30 American civilians in prison. One of 32 civilians listed by the United States as detained, W. L. Winter, was arrested as a spy and died Feb. 27, 1951, in Kwangtung Province, the Communists said.

Winter had done mission work in a Kiangsi Province leprosarium. His home address was not given. Another, the Rev. John B. Maye, a Roman Catholic missionary from Scranton, Pa., was never held and is now living in Changsha, Hunan Province, it was reported.

The information was given at the fourth meeting of U.S. and Chinese representatives here.

U. Alexis Johnson, U.S. Ambassador to Czechoslovakia and acting head of the U.S. delegation since the departure of Undersecretary of State Walter Bedell Smith, advised the Chinese in turn that the United States is now prepared to permit 15 detained Chinese nationals in the United States to depart. Johnson turned over a list of their names.

The Chinese Communists listed as dead three U.S. Air Force fliers—P. E. Voorhis, H. D. Weese and A. D. Hart Jr.

They said the fliers were in the B29 Superfort of Col. John Knox Arnold Jr., which crashed in the area of Antung, China, a MIG base, while on a leaflet-dropping mission near the Yalu River 18 months ago. Radio Peiping reported Jan. 26, 1953, that Arnold and 10 crewmen bailed out and were captured, while three others died in the crash.

U.S. Air Force records indicated the dead were Lt. Paul E. Van

Also, in their faithful day-to-day work, our directors, officers and employees merit a vote of thanks for maintaining the high quality of service upon which the Southern Federal's reputation rests. We believe these factors have combined to lay the foundations on which we are building successfully for the future.

With kindest personal regards, and again thanking you, I remain

Fiancee Says Thorne Told of Drug Addiction

CHICAGO, June 21 (AP)—Blond 18-year-old Maureen Ragen today testified that her fiance, Montgomery Ward Thorne, heir to a mail-order fortune, once told her he had been arrested as a dope addict.

Thorne, 20, was found dead in his Gold Coast apartment Saturday.

Miss Ragen, weeping occasionally as she testified, said Thorne told her his mother once called him "a drunk and a dope addict" and had him arrested. She said Thorne had complained about his relations with his family and contended his "mother didn't love him."

Miss Ragen and Thorne had planned to marry in December, she said.

Testimony concerning Thorne's activities prior to his death came from an attorney, Henry J. Kalcheim, representing his mother. The lawyer said he had received a call from a young woman who said the heir had paid her a pre-dawn visit a few hours before his death.

The woman telephoned the apartment of Thorne's mother to offer condolences, he said.

"The caller identified herself as Suzanne Rooks of 1223 Astor St., a friend of Monty," Kalcheim said. "She said that at 4 a.m. Saturday morning, Monty had come to her apartment which is across the street from his."

Police sought Miss Rooks to obtain her story.

Thorne's body, clad in shorts, was found in bed Saturday morning after Miss Ragen had gone to his apartment to rouse him for a swimming date.

Spectators who packed a funeral parlor heard Detective Raymond J. Curran testify that a search of the apartment which Thorne had occupied only since June 11, turned up a homemade hypodermic syringe, a sleeping pill, a spoon which had been blackened by flame, and a length of thin rubber tubing.

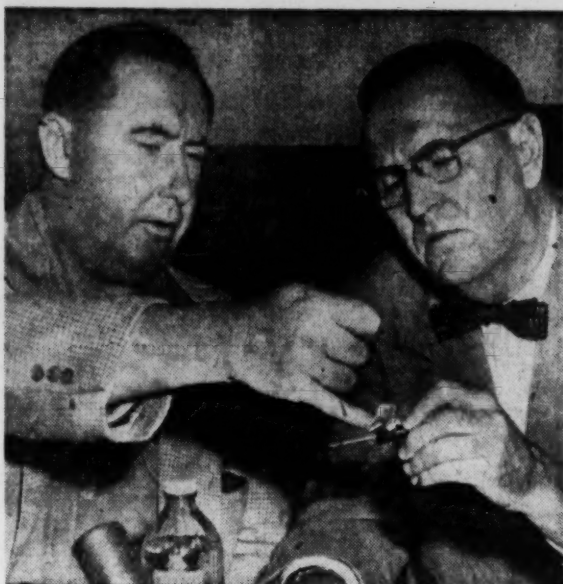

Miss Ragen, blond granddaughter of James M. Ragen, race wire operator who was shot by gangsters in 1946, said Thorne told her that the arrest took place 18 months ago.

Police Capt. William Burke said, however, that Thorne was brought to the Hudson Ave. police station by his mother, Mrs. Marion Thorne, and the two talked with the late Capt. John T. Warren. Burke said Mrs. Thorne's complaint that her son "was running away" and "causing trouble" was ironed out at an informal conference.

Coroner Walter T. McCarron, who said a post mortem examination showed nine needle marks in young Thorne's arms, asked Miss Ragen, "Did you know that he used narcotics?"

"No," she replied, sobbing. "Wouldn't I know if he had?" Asked whether young Thorne had threatened to take his life, she cried, "No, no, no!"

Truman 'Very Satisfactory,' Requests No Special Favors

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 21 (AP)—Former President Truman was in "very satisfactory" condition today and wanted to be a patient "just like anybody else," following emergency removal of his gall bladder and appendix.

But Research Hospital said the patient in Room 323 was like nobody else as far as interest in his case was concerned.

Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill cabled Truman direct as the mountain of messages piled up at the hospital, at home and at Truman's downtown office.

Dr. Wallace Graham visited his patient and found him in good spirits and "very satisfactory" condition.

"We move him as much as possible each morning," Graham said. Truman was permitted to sit up for half an hour this morning.

The hospital recalled that he said he wanted to be "treated just like anybody else." He made no request for a telephone, so the hospital either gave reports at the switchboard or made connections at pay booths for callers when possible on personal calls to members of the family.

Truman became ill Friday night, entered the hospital Saturday night and within three hours was on the operating table. Graham performed the surgery. He said the gall bladder was gangrenous and the appendix secondarily infected because of it.

Truman's pre-operative condition was "very serious," Graham said.

NEW ZEALAND LABOR

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (AP)—New Zealand's 1952-53 laboring population was 766,900. The increase of 15,300 over last year included 14,100 male and 3,400 female migrants.

Today on Peachtree

Light up the Stars!

We've ordered a hex on the rainmakers for the night of July 1st; implored the weatherman to keep his fingers crossed and all devout souls to pray for a sky—full of stars. That, friends, is the night Atlanta's Municipal Theater-under-the-stars kicks off another Summerful of fun—and we just dare it to rain! Just like last season (only better!) there'll be Broadway stars scintillating in big-time Broadway hit shows (Oklahoma! is first on stage). Just like before, Chastain Park will be as folksy as an old-time Georgia camp meeting—Pappy in his shirt sleeves, Mama in her sunback and the kids in blue jeans! But not like before, will be the glamorous new look of the painted-up, primped-up Amphitheatre; the expanded parking space, the 1,000 new seats, and the trailing, night-blooming moon-vine the city Fathers have had planted all around. Better get your season tickets now and put your family's name in the pot for 8 weeks of spell-bound entertainment under the stars.

Strip tease

The plump redhead, clad skimpily in a halter-top and swishy cotton skirt, hopped hopefully on the scales on our Mezzanine. Hope faded as she watched the arrow skitter up... and up. She began stripping furiously: off went her heavy hoop earrings, multi-strand beads, armloads of jangling bracelets, latticed sandals—even the bandeau in her hair! Amused passersby held their breath, thinking the halter—top would surely go next! But it stayed put. So did the scales, except for an infinitesimal downward flutter. Too bad our plump friend didn't know about Davison's Dieter's Delight—the delicious low-calorie luncheon on our 6th floor Terrace Restaurant menu. Different every day. Satisfying, too. Listen what's for lunch tomorrow, Wednesday:

Chef's Omelet
with broiled bacon
Garden spinach, Melba toast
Chilled grapefruit half
All this for just 95¢—325 calories. Come on, girls—strip those pounds away without strip-teasing.

Switcheroo!

Just like the Constitution's Woman's Editor, Agnes McCarty said on June 13th: "The Bikini Look Has Gone Bye-Bye." But what our good friend Aggie did not divulge is where is "Bye-Bye." Is it the limbo reserved for bygone fads? The bourne from which no fashion returns? Actually the Bikini just changed its gender and did a quick switch from gals to guys! And now since the boys took over, the Bikini swim suit is even barker and daringer than before. So short it's practically invisible; cut to cling like a suntan; even latticed up the side for more show! Every body and his brother has climbed on the Bikini bandwagon—you can pick yours in cotton, latex or dacron in Davison's Boys' Shop or Men's Store, Street Floor. And then you can pose on the diving board and wait for those soprano whistles!

Guatemalan Army Now Holds Key

The war is on now in Guatemala, a scale model of the world conflict.

Exiles from, and rebels against, the Red-supported government of President Jacobo Arbenz have moved into Guatemala from Honduras. They have the support of the governments of Honduras and Nicaragua, and perhaps other strongly Central American states. These nations in turn have the backing of the United States, which has considerably more than an ideological interest in the struggle.

The war will be long or short, depending upon the attitude of the ranking officers of Guatemala's army. They can go over to the rebels and end it in a hurry. Or the army can continue to support the Arbenz government and drag it out into a bitter and bloody affair.

The Arbenz regime has been good to the army, a fact which argues for continued loyalty. The army, too, is supposedly cool to the United States as a result of its refusal to sell them arms, which later were obtained in Poland. It must be clear though to even the most anti-United States officer that victory eventually will favor the anti-Red rebels, whether it be today or next year.

The United States cannot allow a leftist fortress to stand in this hemisphere. Intervention is an ugly word even when it only amounts to logistic support of a couple of other countries on our side. But diplomacy has failed and there is no other course.

Diversification Gives Men Some Independence

The value of farm land is declining, but to a smaller extent in the South than elsewhere.

Lack of cash and a tightening of credit have slowed the sale of farms, but on the other hand, foreclosures are practically nonexistent. While there certainly is no boom in rural real estate, there are few distress sales either.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture keeps track of such things and explains the relatively firm position of the Southern farm market on the purchase of land by industrial workers.

Here is the perfect hedge, diversification of agriculture and industry on the part of the individual. It is one of the reasons why the South has other sections of the country licked as a happy home for industry.

The Southerner likes to keep one foot on the land. While he may have a fine job in a big plant he goes home each day to his own house, a garden, and maybe a few acres of fields and a wood lot. There is little living in tenements and little of that feeling of desperation that overtakes a man when he realizes the welfare of his family is entirely dependent on one product or the favor of one man.

The South is fortunate that its industrial development came late for we can avoid the mistakes of the older industrial areas. We can gladly skip the grimy tenements of the old manufacturing towns and the way of life that sapped men of their independence and reduced them to the status of ciphers.

The GI Bill of Rights Has Its 10th Birthday

There was no room on the front page of The Constitution of June 23, 1944, for the story that in Washington the day before the President had signed into law the veterans' aid legislation even then being called the "GI Bill of Rights." The front page was filled with news of the fighting—in the Philippine sea, around Cherbourg in France, below Rome and in the air over Berlin.

The GI Bill story was on Page 15. In signing the bill F.D.R. had said, "This law gives emphatic notice to the men and women in our armed forces that the American people do not intend to let them down."

In the decade since the law became effective, the veterans of Saipan and Normandy and Anzio and a thousand other battlefields have acquired schooling and skills, jobs and homes under provisions of the GI Bill.

One of every five servicemen and women obtained GI loans to the amount of $23,500,000,000. Of those one-in-five, 65,758 were Georgians. Over $3,000,000,000 of the indebtedness has been paid off in full.

Half of the veterans of World War II—191,000 in Georgia—have received training under the GI Bill—in high school and college, even in grade school. They have trained on-the-job and on-the-farm.

Only 10 per cent of all veterans took full advantage of their benefits in the "52-20" club, the unemployment phase of the legislation.

It's true there have been defaults in the loan program. There were abuses in GI training and unemployment benefits. The GI Bill was a human program, administered by people to and for people. Nobody expected perfection. The defaults and abuses have been few.

The benefits to the nation have been inestimable.

The veteran was assisted to a higher level of education and to a higher income (and hence to a higher tax bracket). He became a homeowner at a time when he needed a settling influence.

But most of all through the GI Bill a grateful nation had chosen a new way to make partial payment on a debt to those who risked their lives in its defense.

There's a new GI Bill in effect for the veterans of Korea, thanks to the precedent set 10 years ago by a Congress and a President determined that the armed forces know the folks at home were not going to let them down.

Bulloch County Herald Wins National Honor

The Bulloch Herald at Statesboro long has been among the outstanding weekly newspapers in Georgia. Leodel Coleman, the editor and publisher, is an energetic fellow of high integrity. Through his paper, he serves his community and nation as earnestly as he served both when he was a Marine in World War II.

On the Herald editorial page, Editor Coleman criticizes when he feels criticism is in order. He is as liberal with praise and commendation. Whenever a Bulloch County organization or individual deserves plaudits, Leodel says it with "Up Goes Our Hat."

This time it is our hat that goes into the air for The Bulloch Herald and its publishers. Last week at the National Editorial Association convention this Bulloch County, Georgia, paper was awarded an "excellence in typography" rating by the NEA Better Newspaper Contests.

The Constitution congratulates Leodel Coleman and his staff on the achievement. We congratulate his community on having at its service a newspaper which is excellent, not only typographically, but also editorially.

Man Never Knows What May Fall From the Sky

A pilot has been jailed in Georgia on suspicion of drunken flying, and we have another hazard added to our already dangerous existence.

According to news reports, the pilot was observed flying low, clipping the tops of pines and finally nose-diving to earth. Officers reported he sustained only a slight cut as a result of this airborne spree.

Drunken drivers are no novelty, and within recent years the General Assembly has seen fit to pass regulations concerning the operation of motor boats while under the influence.

The life of the average man is growing tenser daily. He must be alert against the many menaces on the surface of the earth and, if that isn't enough, must occasionally cast a suspicious look skyward, just in case there's an irresponsible pilot around. Birds are unpredictable enough, but at least we are accustomed to them.

Walker County Messenger Voters Should Examine Records of Candidates

Hardly can we remember when political races for high state offices in Georgia were loaded with burning issues of vital concern to the people. Our state along with other states, has seen demagoguery in each campaign—half truths emphasized, race prejudice injected and other unethical and unsound methods used. We look for some of the same tactics in the coming races for our high offices.

All of which makes it imperative that the people do their own thinking. Every candidate for high office should be studied and investigated as to his past record, his proposed policy, and his personal character.

Since the ruling of the United States Supreme Court on segregation, much wild talk has flooded our state by proposed candidates and present high state officials. Ways to evade the court's decree and various panaceas will be offered the electorate on the public school question. On this major campaign issue the people should look at the facts, think for themselves and not be swayed by prejudice, half-baked opinions, smear and fear tactics of designing politicians.

It's a big summer in politics in Georgia, but with calm judgment, sane reasoning and faith in our democratic process of government, Georgians are capable of meeting the issues and solving them for the best interest of the people.

From candidates for governor, all state house offices, including county representatives, look into their past records on issues of vital concern to you, and make up your own mind as to how you are going to vote.

Senior Senator From Wisconsin May Feel That He's Forgotten Man in Nation's Eyes

St. Louis, Mo.—The senior senator from Wisconsin must be an old dyed-in-the-wool introvert.

As far as I know, the senior senator from Wisconsin has never declared war on any branch of the armed services and there's something about his personality that is golden.

The senior senator from Wisconsin may feel at times that he has been forgotten due to his not having an audience international in scope.

I feel he needs some encouragement in his line of work and I hope he will continue being a good senior senator from Wisconsin. FRED WEAVER.

Investigators Branded As Liars or Worse

Bethlehem—I agree that the Communists are gloating. They are gloating and hugely pleased that despite the proven facts about persons being members of the Communist Party, that they are permitted to go on working in the radar laboratories, defense plants and various government departments.

In the interim, those who seek to stop this menace to the United States and diligently work to bring the facts to the people are branded as liars, distortionists and every printable name that is bad. MRS. GRACE EDWARDS.

McCarthyism Symbol Could Be Shiny Cone

Atlanta—The only difference between McCarthyism and the other two big isms, Communism and Fascism, is that the latter two have symbols or emblems—the swastika, or something similar, and the hammer and sickle.

An appropriate symbol for McCarthyism would be a shining cone, for obvious reasons. Also, the dictionary defines a cone as a figure that tapers from a circular base to a point (the head).

Oppenheimer Ousting Hurts Our Security

Mount Vernon, N.Y.—It is hard to see the justification for declaring Dr. Oppenheimer a security risk who has to be ousted from a government position even though he is officially found to be both loyal and discreet.

Actually his discharge is very clearly harmful to the security of the United States. For it has made a lot of top-ranking physicists and scientists very unwilling to enter government service, so that our government will be deprived of the best brains in physics, and perhaps other scientific lines, too. ALFRED BAKER LEWIS.

Rain Unwanted at The Amphitheater

Atlanta's rainfall deficiency so far this year is 9.25 inches.

This is rugged on pastures, lawns and row crops. It may be tough later on those who depend on springs and shallow wells for their water supply. For if it doesn't rain, the level of the water stored underground drops, and when the water table falls, wells go dry and springs cease flowing.

Atlanta gets its heaviest rains in winter and early spring, and when the hot weather comes we have enough water stored in our rocky soil to see us through the season of heat and drought. A dry winter and spring can spell a summer of trouble, particularly for those whose living can be jeopardized by the inconstancies of nature.

There is one group in Atlanta though that is not praying for rain. In fact, the group is thinking about hiring an Indian to do a rain dance in reverse. An invocation to the Indian gods to keep the skies cloudless and the stars properly burnished each night.

These drought lovers are the sponsors of the Municipal Theater Under the Stars, and while rain may be just what the grass needs, it doesn't help a performance of "Oklahoma!" at all.

The Theater Under the Stars is a non-profit civic enterprise and begins its second season July 1 in the amphitheater at Chastain Memorial Park. Non-profit does not mean that the organization wants to go in debt, and too much rain can wash it right from the credit to the debit side of the ledger.

Last year the Municipal Theater had a successful season, although quite a few damp nights had the sponsors worried. "Carrousel," the hit of last year's repertoire, had to be carried to the Tower Theater on an hour's notice, where it spent two nights due to inclement weather. "Desert Song" invoked a number of showers, while the nautical "Hit the Deck" caused the heavens to open.

This year the sponsors of the summer musicals are ready with rain checks, but hoping for the best. One act of the show is considered the equivalent of four and a half innings of baseball, and in case of rain, tickets will be honored later.

Atlanta has no summer rainy season but specializes in local showers. The amphitheater may be as dry as a bone while nearby Buckhead is getting a thorough drenching. East Point can be baking under a midsummer sun while Sandy Springs is moldery with damp. If you're on your way to the Theater Under the Stars and it begins to shower at home, don't take it as a sign that the seats are wet in Chastain Park.

They're getting ready at the amphitheater now for a big and very useful summer. There are new seats, new sets and a new and squawless public address system. Moonvines are thriving and should be blooming soon, if not for "Oklahoma!", at least for "Song of Norway."

Everything is about ready but the weather, and not even Mayor Hartsfield can do anything about that. The sponsors are searching for an Indian medicine man who knows a reverse rain dance, but promise if the drought gets really serious, to undo the Indian magic with a rain-making, heaven-splitting revival of "Hit the Deck."

Planks, Nail Kegs Served for Pews

I met a friend a few days ago who asked, "Have you read 'Dig or Die, Brother Hyde'?" I said that I hadn't. He said, "Well, all I have to say is, you must read it. It's wonderful."

On my desk I have eight or 10 books which I have been told I must read and I often wonder how I'll ever get a chance to read all of the books people recommend.

But because I have great admiration for my friend's judgment, I determined I would read this book so many people are talking about. And what a delight reading it has been!

Dig or Die, Brother Hyde is the story of William J. Hyde and it was recently published by Harper and Brothers. It is more than an autobiographical sketch of a pioneer Methodist minister; it is a story of America and of the American church. It is as much a part of the American scene as the Gold Rush of 1849 or the New York skyscrapers of 1954.

Mr. Hyde went into the Dakota territory in 1886. He was 22 years old. He had no church, no support and only $60 in his pocket. The farewell admonition of his presiding elder was, "Dig or Die, Brother Hyde."

His first church service in Groton, Dakota territory, was held in a room over a saloon and reached only by an outside ladder. Planks borrowed from a lumberyard were used as pews.

Six lamps were fastened along the walls "and with their reflectors they gave enough light so that people could recognize one another almost any place in the room." For a pulpit Mr. Hyde was given "a fine stove grate and enough brown paint to make it look quite like a piece of furniture."

Services were announced in the local newspaper and Mr. Hyde climbed the ladder at the back of Dooley's Saloon at 7:30 Sunday night. We read: "Already the room was nearly filled. People were greeting one another in a most friendly way; there was some jostling, of course, but nothing loud or out of place. By the time the service started, the room was packed."

"I had figured that the improvised benches could seat about sixty—I was planning for an optimistic future—but every seat was taken and a few men were standing at the back. It was suffocating with so many people packed under the rafters, but once in, there was no hope of anyone's getting out unless a whole benighted slid off to the middle aisle."

The author summarizes his remembrance of that pioneer service with these words: "From the first hymn to the benediction, it was a good service. I think we worshipped in the beauty of holiness, although we were lacking in the beauty of any other appointments. God was in Groton that night where the people sat on planks across nail kegs in the room over Dooley's Saloon."

Scientist's Showing Weak at Hearing

WASHINGTON—Generalizations are often harmful, and nothing could be more detrimental to the interests of the United States than any blanket condemnation of scientists because of the peculiar behavior of Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, who was declared a "security risk" by a special board appointed by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Publication of the official transcript of the hearings of this board reveals some very interesting comments on the subject of scientists where loyalty or security matters are involved.

John Lansdale, who was the top security officer for the atomic bomb project, was interrogated under oath on April 16 last and said he felt that, to the extent of his knowledge, Dr. Oppenheimer is loyal but added that, on the matter of "security clearance," he had been confined to the bare record he would not have granted it. He said:

"In other words, if Dr. Oppenheimer had not been as important as he was, I would certainly have stopped with the record and used my every endeavor to persuade the general (Groves) that Dr. Oppenheimer ought to be dispensed with."

This is probably as good an example as any of the difficulty that the security officers had with some of the scientists at the laboratory where during the last war the atomic bomb was being developed.

The special board which recently heard the testimony on Dr. Oppenheimer declared:

"... The board has been impressed, and in many ways heartened by the manner in which many scientists have sprung to the defense of one whom many felt was under unfair attack. This is important and encouraging when one is concerned with the vitality of our society. However, the board feels constrained to express its concern that in this solidarity there have been attitudes so uncompromising in support of science in general, and Dr. Oppenheimer in particular, that some witnesses have, in our judgment, allowed their convictions to supersede what might reasonably have been their recollections."

What undoubtedly is referred to here is a conspicuous instance in which a scientist flatly contradicted the testimony of two other witnesses, but the board chose not to specify publicly which ones were meant. While scientists as a body cannot be condemned, some of their numbers didn't show up so well in the hearings as believing in whole-hearted cooperation with their government except as they themselves interpreted the obligation.

Raid Yields 40 Slots in Phenix City

2 'Hot Suspects' Eyed in Slaying

Safety, and Sheriff Ralph Mathews Jr., of Russell County.

Chief Pal M. Daniels, of the Phenix City police, said the city was not consulted on the raids.

Meanwhile, Atty. Gen. Si Garrett returned to Phenix City.

He reported there was no progress in the investigation of the murder last Friday night of Albert L. Patterson, attorney-general nominee, who was slain in an alley near his office.

Garrett said he sent home his two assistants, who would return Tuesday to relieve him, and he would return to Montgomery.

Meanwhile, the Birmingham Grand Jury centered its third week of intensive investigation into the question of who changed official county returns to give Lee (Red) Porter 600 additional votes for attorney general. Porter, a Gadsden attorney, was defeated by Patterson by a narrow margin.

Circuit Court Judge Alta King told the jury:

"Those responsible for Patterson's murder have flaunted the will of the people of Alabama, first by endeavoring to steal the election from him, and when this failed, they ruthlessly took his life—showing to what extent such lawless elements will go to carry their point."

PERSONS EMPHATIC

At Montgomery, Gov. Persons told his news conference that he has advised Sheriff Mathews and Archie Ferriss, circuit solicitor, that lawlessness will no longer be tolerated in Phenix City.

"I told them the whole show is over," he said, "and when they might as well pass the word along to all gamblers, prostitutes and petty criminals to get out of town and stay out of town."

State Rep. J. W. Brassell of Phenix City said he would appear before the grand jury Tuesday.

"If I live, I will be in Birmingham to tell them what I know," he said.

Developments Monday, according to Fuller, included the fact that two new suspects described as the "hottest yet" were brought into the investigation into Patterson's slaying.

Fuller said one of the suspects, a liquor store owner in Columbus, was being questioned by a sheriff's deputy and an agent of the Investigation and Identification Bureau of the Alabama Department of Public Safety.

Fuller said the other suspect had not been located. Both suspects, he said, fit the description of the man witnesses said ran from the scene of the slaying.

The man was described as five feet, eight inches tall, weighing 140 to 150 pounds, and dressed in a light tan suit.

NOT TIED TO RACKET

Fuller said neither suspect is "tied in with the racket."

Meanwhile, two witnesses in the case made belated reports to investigating officers. Officers said a tip led to questioning of one of the witnesses and the other volunteered his information.

Officers did not reveal the identity of either witness, and reported that one of them apparently in fear asked that his name not be disclosed.

FUNERAL SERVICES

Meanwhile, three Methodist ministers and one Baptist officiated at funeral services at 2 p.m. for the murdered man.

An American flag draped the casket in tribute to Patterson's World War I record. A large floral from the Russell Betterment Assn. hung on a wall behind the coffin.

The Rev. T. E. Steeley, pastor of the West Side Baptist Church in Phenix City, prayed for divine deliverance from what he called "the agencies of Hell" in the now-quiet once-roaring gambling mecca across the Chattahoochee River from Columbus, Ga., and Ft. Benning.

NEAR DEATH SCENE

The services were held in the packed, steamy-hot auditorium of Trinity Methodist Church, a half-block from the spot where Patterson was slain last Friday night.

A Methodist minister, the Rev. R. K. Jones, of nearby Pepperell, Ala., protested bitterly in his eulogy that time and again the ministers of Phenix City and other anti-vice crusaders have appealed to public officials, some of them on the state level, for aid in stamping out the racket, but that "our pleas fell on the ears of indifference."

Several members of the Alabama State Legislature attended the services.

This border town which for years has been a playground for fun-loving Ft. Benning soldiers was still off limits to military personnel for the third straight day and there was no sign of a letup.

Farms Get Stiff Curbs; Wheat Cut

fight for an extension of high, rigid price supports.

HELD TOO SHARP

They contended that the cross compliance to get price supports and sharp cutbacks in production would create a two drastic drop in farm income.

Hope, Republican from the country's No. 1 wheat state, Kansas, said his committee likely will write into its "single package" farm bill an incentive payment program for farmers who comply with the acreage reduction programs. The administration has earmarked $55,000,000 from the agricultural conservation program to ease the economic shock on farmers and to encourage shifts to soil-building crops to lick the surplus problem.

The committee voted this afternoon to write into the bill a two-price system for wheat. It would provide for farmers to vote in 1956 on whether they favor a two-price system in place of the present marketing quotas. A majority vote would make it mandatory for the agriculture secretary to put a two-price system into effect.

PROGRAM BASE

The committee's proposal would be based on a marketing certificate program. Under this, that portion of wheat consumed domestically would be supported at 100 per cent of parity while export wheat would be moved into world trade at competitive world prices.

Benson blamed the major part of the surplus problem on long-continued use of high, rigid price supports. "Such supports bring unbalanced production, restricted sales and use, result in waste and inevitably lead to regimentation and restrictive measures."

"The long-range interest of agriculture and the national economy will best be served when we can have less—and not more—government regulation and control," he said.

Rebels Set Up A Regime In Guatemala

nounced the setting up of the government and called on the people for support against those "who had bowed to Communist domination."

It also named an "Anti-Communist Coordination Committee" headed by Carlos Salazar and three other rebel leaders.

Castillo said he was counting on the support of 90 per cent of the Guatemalan people. He said that his movement was aimed wholly at the government of President Arbenz Guzman.

He said popular acclaim for the invasion forces made possible the "rapid advance" toward the capital city "with no armed clashes."

Authoritative sources reported that Arbenz had declared martial law throughout Guatemala.

Harris Backs Hand for Governor

gram so as to give the two races equal and separate facilities.

4. To continue to work with Negro leaders on voluntary acceptance of plans to maintain segregation.

DRIVE ROLE

Harris' statement created speculation as to what role he will play in Hand's campaign.

The Augustan played a leading part in the successful campaigns of the late Eugene Talmadge, Herman Talmadge, Ellis Arnall and Ed Rivers.

Harris, also a member of the Board of Regents, said the student-assignment plan offered by Rep. Charlie Gowen, also a candidate, is illegal and would not meet the court test.

HE'S SILENT

Griffin had no comment on Harris' remarks.

Gubernatorial Candidates M. E. Thompson and Tom Linder will offer their plans to the commission Friday. Edmund Barfield of Atlanta, who has announced he will run for governor, also will appear before the commission.

SHOWS GRASP

"Speaker Hand seems to have a firmer grasp of the problems involved than any of the other candidates who spoke, and his approach to the solution is from the practical standpoint," Harris commented.

Candidate Griffin proposed increasing the size of local school boards to 100, and requiring parents to live in Georgia a year before their children become eligible for public schools. He would elect the boards by popular vote.

If a five-man board can't act legally, how much more legal does Griffin think the action of 100 would be? Harris asked. If three candidates ran for each post, a little county would have 300 candidates in the large, confused election, he said. A meeting of the 100-member board would look like a session of the Legislature, Harris said.

Banning new people from public schools "undoubtedly" would cause all Army camps and installations to move out of Georgia, Harris went on.

He said Garland's plan to place

wheat would be moved into world trade at competitive world prices.

Benson blamed the major part of the surplus problem on long-continued use of high, rigid price supports. "Such supports bring unbalanced production, restricted sales and use, result in waste and inevitably lead to regimentation and restrictive measures."

four schools in each community—one for white girls, one for Negro girls, one for white boys and one for Negro boys, is illegal. Also, the state is having a difficult time providing two sets of schools in each community, much less four, he said.

"If these ideas are a sample of the mental capacity of these two candidates (Griffin and Garland), then we would be in a devil of a fix with either serving as chief executive of a great state," Harris concluded.

Harris said Georgia can have segregated schools "if the white people have the intelligence, the guts and the energy to see to it that they are segregated." A governor with intelligence and courage can make it much easier, he added. A Legislature with intelligence and courage also will

BALDNESS MAY NOT BE NECESSARY NOW

Decide Today to Give Your Hair Proper Care

There are almost as many theories as to the causes of baldness as there are authorities on the subject. Some scientists call dandruff the "arch-killer" of hair. Others claim that baldness results from gradual atrophy of the sources of hair-growth. Heredity is often accused—but scientific evidence is lacking to back up the accusation.

While it is obvious that authorities are not in accord as to the specific causes of baldness, they DO generally agree that baldness is less likely to occur on a clean, healthy scalp. And here is where the Thomas specialist comes in. First he examines your hair and scalp and finds out what your hair troubles are. He then develops and administers a precise Thomas treatment designed to create the most favorable environment for your prolonged hair growth.

PSC Restrained by Court In Power Co. Rate Suit

The State Public Service Commission Monday was restrained from putting into effect an order which would have called upon the Georgia Power and Light Co. and the Georgia Power Co. to show cause why they should not act to give GP&L customers lower rates.

Sims Seeks Post of Fulton Boardman

Ralph G. Sims, 54-year-old Atlanta attorney, qualified Monday to run in the September primary as a candidate for Fulton County commissioner.

Seeking his first political office, the former insurance counsel will run for the first bracket commission post.

Sims is also the first candidate entering the commission race besides the incumbent commissioners.

He announced his candidacy on a "representative platform—to repair the parts of county government that have fallen down."

Promising fairness and consideration to everyone, Sims said he would seek to "do something about zoning practices" if elected, and also to recognize "labor as it should be."

Sims said he would endeavor to prevent liquor stores from operating in residential areas, and alter the "closed competition practices" in other sections.

A brother of former Atlanta mayor Walter Sims, the candidate is a native Georgian and has lived in Buckhead most of his life. He is now temporarily residing at 763 Techwood Dr., N.E., until his home is completed.

A graduate of Boys High School and Atlanta Law School, Sims was a legal counsel for an insurance firm 18 years. He entered general law practice here three years ago and occupies law offices in the Candler Building.

He is a member of the First Baptist Church, where he is a deacon; Delta Theta Phi, legal fraternity; a past president of Rock Springs Civic Club and the Atlanta Claim Men's Assn., and is both a Scottish and York Rite Shriner.

Sims is married and has a 7-year-old daughter.

NAIROBI, Kenya, June 21 (AP)—Twenty-two Mau Mau tribesmen were hanged at Nairobi prison last week, authorities announced today. Among them were the leader of one Mau Mau band, six convicted of murder, six in illegal possession of arms and ammunition, three convicted of administering the Mau Mau oath and six who had consorted with armed persons.

Tanker Longer Than Top Liners Ready for Duty

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—One of the world's biggest tankers, a $9,500,000 craft longer than the luxury liners America and Constitution, arrived here today to begin service between the Persian Gulf and the United States.

The tanker, named the W. Alton Jones in honor of the chairman of the firm which had it built, the Cities Service Co., got the traditional whistled salute of other harbor vessels as it came up the bay to Manhattan.

The craft is one of four super tankers to be built for the Persian Gulf operation.

It is 707 feet long, boasts 22,000 horsepower and a capacity of 336,000 barrels of oil. It was said to be the fastest single-screw vessel of its size afloat. Officials indicated it made 18 to 20 knots on its voyage here from Newport News.

ENGLAND'S BANNISTER
Broke Four-Minute Barrier

AUSTRALIA'S LANDY RUNS MILE IN RECORD 3:58.0

TURKU, Finland, June 21 (AP)—John Landy of Australia ran the mile in a phenomenal three minutes and 58 seconds today, clipping 1.4 seconds off Roger Bannister's world record and becoming the second man to crash the four-minute barrier.

The 24-year-old Melbourne flier also was timed in 3:41.8 for the 1,500 meters, another world mark if approved by the International Amateur Athletic Federation. Both clockings must be recognized by the IAAF.

Landy, knocking at the door of the four-minute mile for two years, was racing against five international foes, including Britain's Chris Chataway, who paced Bannister to his record 3:59.4 performance at Oxford May 6.

The combination cinder track at Turku Stadium was lightning fast and the weather was ideal. A blazing sun beat down on a crowd of 8,000. Temperature was 77 degrees.

Landy didn't follow his normal formula of setting the pace all the way. After a comparatively slow first quarter in which he lay back in second place, he shot to the front just before the half-mile mark and finished blazing.

The crowd, sensing a record performance, went wild. As Landy clipped off the final laps in short, lightning steps, the crowd spurred him on with the yell, "Landy, Landy, Landy."

As the lean Aussie shot across the finish line, wearing a broad smile and showing no signs of exhaustion, spectators broke into a thunderous roar. Then they swarmed from the stands, broke down the fences and carried Landy from the stadium on their shoulders.

Landy, showing a tremendous finishing kick, was 35 yards ahead of Chataway as he breasted the tape. Chataway was timed in 4:04.0, followed by Finland's Olavi Vuorisalo in 4:07 and Denis Johanson, also of Finland, in 4:07.5. Two other Finns, Ilmari Taipale and A. Kallio, trailed.

"I'm too happy to be able to speak," the jubilant Aussie said. "If it hadn't been for Chris Chataway's chasing me around the track, I would never have made it. I knew he was immediately behind me and that he would not hesitate to pass me if I slowed up the very least."

"I have never run on a better track than this, and I would like to call the race the one hundred per cent contest."

Finnish track authorities said they felt there was no doubt Landy's clockings would be recognized as world records. Fully authorized timers were set up at the 1,500-meter mark and the mile finish line.

Lap times were announced for meter distances rather than for yards. Times were 58 seconds for the first 400 meters; 1:57.9 for 800 meters; 2:27.2 for the 1,000 and 2:56 flat for the 1,200.

It was the sixth tremendous mile run of the year by the world's crack crew of runners who set out in a wholesale assault on Gunder Haegg's old record of 4:01.4, set in 1945.

America's hope—Wes Santee of University of Kansas—has had three mile performances pressing the four-minute barrier. On May 29, he ran the mile in 4:01.3, followed with 4:06.6 in the Compton (Calif.) Relays June 4 and 4:06.7 in the Coliseum Relays at Los Angeles June 11.

Kallio set the early pace today as Landy bided his time. Landy was on Kallio's heels when they crossed the 400-meter mark in 58 seconds.

Just before the half-mile, Landy burst into the lead, carrying Chataway with him. The Englishman hung on doggedly and was breathing on Landy's neck when the two passed the 1,000 meters in 2:27.2.

As the bell sounded for the final lap, Landy began a tremendous spurt and gradually lengthened his lead. The Australian hit the tape with a burst and, instead of collapsing, trotted around the finish line until he was picked up by admiring Finns.

Out of the Rubber Kitchen

It was already developing into a pretty good weekend for underdogs when K. O. Christner showed up. The way it happened, H. Parker Lowell, poet, author, artist, wrestler, meal-time heavyweight and swimming instructor at the YMCA, was attempting to sell a client some gym wear and this over-sized pigeon with horn-rimmed glasses kept butting in.

"Look, buddy," said Lowell to the oversized pigeon. "I can lick you."

"I don't doubt it," said the pigeon. "Several guys have."

Then the pigeon stuck out his hand and doubled up with mirth. H. P. Lowell also doubled up with mirth, for it was K. O. Christner, who was his old pal, but whom he hadn't seen in 17 years. Nobody, for that matter, has seen K. O. Christner professionally for 17 years, and more. Seems like the last time he fought it was in 1933 and he lost to a guy with the sensational name of Tiger Jack Fox.

Now comes a question from a gentleman in the balcony: "So who's K. O. Christner?"

This gentleman is a little young, maybe 25, or even 30. His sire would know who is K. O. Christner, even if he did have to wrinkle his wrinkles and do some serious remembering.

—K.O. Did Some Danish Pasting

Then Tunney retired and they began the search for the new champion. Tunney had a candidate of his own, an importation named Knute Hansen from Denmark. In order to prepare the great Dane properly for his ascendancy, certain indoctrination fights were necessary. Selected as one of the trial horses for the Hansen buildup series was K. O. Christner.

It took place in Cleveland Dec. 4, 1928, plughorse Christner against Knute Hansen, by appointment of His Majesty the Champ. The bout was scheduled for 10 rounds, but it never reached the limit. In the eighth, Christner decked Hansen and the Dane never got up.

Now the champion-hunters had a problem on their hands. The plughorse had wrecked their thoroughbred. They decided to throw Christner in with Jack Sharkey and rub him out without any further complications.

Christner not only stayed 10 with Sharkey, but the journalists there raised a tremendous howl when the decision went to the Boston Luthuanian. The plughorse had been hobbled, but not until Paulino Uzcudun, the Bounding Basque, decked him a month later did the furor subside.

Anyway, K. O. had himself a going business housed up in that cumbersome frame of his. For the next three or four years he lived on it, fighting around the top level, meeting such as Johnny Risko, Ernie Schaaf, Max Baer, Young Stribling, Mickey Walker any Tony Galento.

—He Got in Line for Carnera

This was during the years that the New York mob was preparing Primo Carnera for the big title in the biggest fraud that the fight business ever knew. K. O. met the monstrous Alp in Detroit in 1930. This was one buildup he didn't dare snarl. He obediently went down in the fourth round.

By this time, though, he was already in his 35th year and headed no place in particular, except in the opposite direction from the alms house. They speak in marveling terms of Jersey Joe Walcott and Archie Moore and the fight in these old men at such advanced age. Christner was 32 before he ever went into the industry.

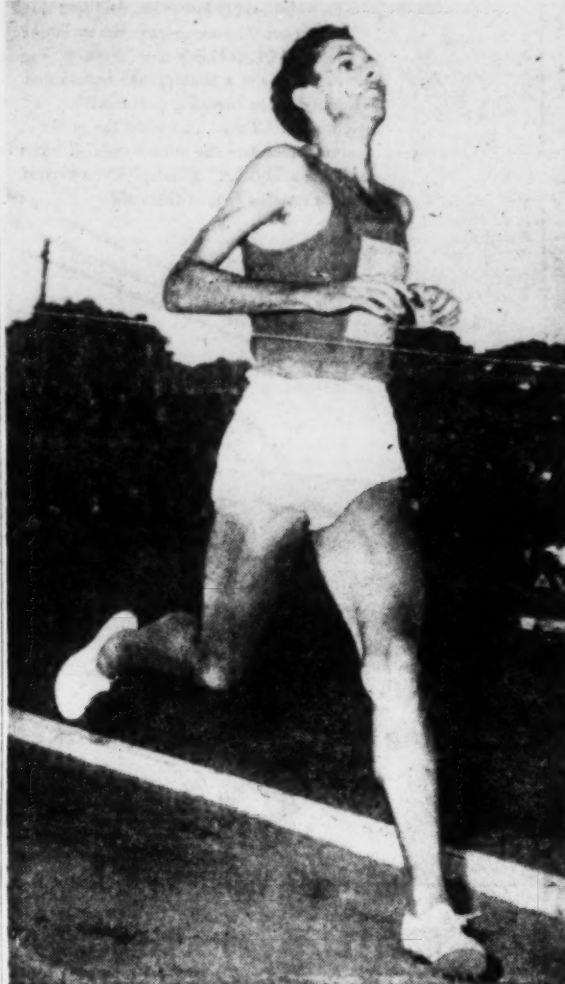

He was working in "the pits" for a rubber company in Akron. "The Pits" is where they "cook" the tires like rubber doughnuts, and down there it's a place where only he-hoss men can live. One day a giant of a workman challenged Christner and K. O. kayaked the bruiser. Somebody suggested he should be a boxer, and being easily influenced, K. O. took it seriously. He fought in smokers for awhile and after he'd won 48 out of 50 bouts by knockouts they began to call him K. O. Then he gave up his place in the rubber kitchen and moved out into the trade under Suey Welch, a veteran handler of fighting flesh.

In his time K. O. played tackle for a team of deaf mutes called the Goodyear Silents, among whom he was unusual. He could both speak and hear. "I had to be awful careful, or I'd let the cat out of the bag. It did give me a great trial, though, to keep quiet when I'd hear somebody on the other team say, 'Let's run the next play at that big dumb son-of-a—over there.'"

Scortichini Wins Split Decision

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—Italo Pedro, Midway he shifted fire to the body with his right hook, hooking the head. Both fighters drew repeated warnings from referee Al Beri. Scortichini weighed 154, Gonzales 158 1/2 pounds.

Time after time the 24-year-old Italian brushed off Gonzales' jabs and slapping punches to score heavily with both hands. Early in the bout Scortichini concentrated on a long right lead that staggered

HERE'S NEW KING OF WORLD'S MILERS
Landy Won This Melbourne Race In January, Too

'Wonderful' Bannister Is Glad Landy Broke Mark

LONDON, June 21 (AP)—Lanky Roger Bannister heard tonight that Australian John Landy had shattered his "miracle mile" record and immediately sent him his congratulations.

"It is a wonderful achievement," said the modest young British medical student, now studying hard for his medical school examinations.

"Landy has tried as hard as anyone to run the mile in under four minutes, and I am glad he has succeeded."

"This shows there is no finality in records. They can all be broken."

Bannister said he looked forward to his race against the new record-holder in the Empire Games at Vancouver next month.

Asked if he thought the record would be broken again, Bannister said modestly: "Well, that will be a race, and the time will be of secondary consideration. I don't really expect Landy's time will be broken there."

Bannister said he is sure the four-minute mile will be cracked again.

"You always have a distant target to beat," he said. "It used to be four minutes. Now the target is three minutes, 58 seconds."

Bannister's friend Chris Chataway, who paced him for his "miracle mile" last month, was the man who helped Landy to the new record today.

"Chris is a marvel," Bannister said.

Jack Crump, secretary of the British Amateur Athletic Board, regarded Landy's feat "fantastic."

Niagara Falls, Ont., in a 10-round television bout at Eastern Parkway Arena tonight. Kelly weighed 140 1/2, Ryff 138.

In scoring his 12th victory, the 22-year-old New Yorker opened cuts over both of his opponent's eyes and floored the Canadian in the eighth round with a right to the chin. Kelly was up at two and shook his head disgustedly while taking the mandatory eight count.

Rozek Checks Crax With Five-Hitter, 4-1

Donovan Tagged For Second Loss

By JESSE OUTLAR
Constitution Sports Writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 21 — Dick Rozek, a southpaw who claims he belongs in the majors instead of the minors, convinced Atlanta he's right Monday night.

The Philadelphia Athletic cast-off fuzze the league leaders on five hits, as sixth-place Little Rock gained a 4-1 victory before a sparse house of 779.

The Crackers had their Southern Association lead trimmed to three games as Birmingham whipped Memphis, 9-5.

Rozek, who had control troubles during a three-season stay in the majors in which he had a 1-0 record, walked only one Cracker and struck out six.

He lost his shutout bid in the second when Frank DiPrima, snapping out of a prolonged slump, walloped his No. 4 homer. It was a 350-foot smash over the left-field scoreboard.

However, DiPrima was the first and last Cracker to get past second base, as Rozek bottled his second triumph. He has lost one to Atlanta.

Dick Donovan, whose record dropped to 5-2, turned in one of the better Cracker pitching performances of late. But his mates simply couldn't get through to Rozek.

After DiPrima smacked his homer, the Travelers snarled the score in the third when Carl Linhart tripled and counted on Billy Porter's throwing error.

The Travelers settled the issue in the fifth when Hal Simpson laced a two-run double to right.

Linhart had walked with one out and made third on R. C. Oley's single. Oley took second on the relay throw to set the stage for Simpson's game-winning blast.

Russ Sullivan's sixth homer, a shot over the right-field fence with two out in the seventh, presented

Bob Giggie finally finished a game for the Crackers, working the eighth after Donovan was hoisted for a pinch-hitter.

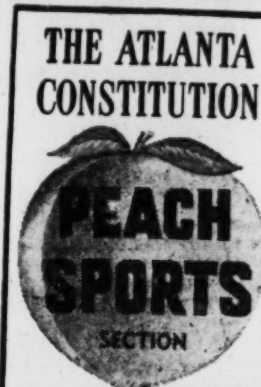

Frank Torre was the only Cracker who bothered Rozek, for the pitcher broke his glasses trying to field Frank's infield hit in the seventh.

Leo Cristante (13-2) has been named to pitch the second of the four-game set for the Crackers Tuesday night. Milo Johnson (5-6) is the Traveler hurler choice.

CRACKER DIARY: Southern Association Pres. Charlie Hurth, an onlooker at Monday's Atlanta-Little Rock game, has received no copy of Memphis' protest of last Thursday's game. So the Chicks, who were basing their squawk on an umpire's decision over whether Paul Rambone touched home with the winning run, may have decided not to file one.

Vern Petty, forced out of Sunday's first game in Memphis when he was hit on the left forearm by a hot grounder, sat out Monday's contest. However, he'll probably get back in harness Tuesday.

Hal Simpson, out for a month due to a pulled leg muscle, is back in the Little Rock lineup, but still limps badly. . . . Dick Kelly and Bob Giggie, who haven't finished in 14 starts between them, have been relegated to the bullpen brigade.

Dave Jaska, who has made the Southern Association all-star team twice in three years, can't even make the Little Rock club this year. He reported late and is riding the bench with an anemic .221 average. . . . Jim Solt, catching despite a broken jaw, was shaken up when a Dick Rozek foul tip struck his mask in the inning.

Tribes' Avila Holds American Bat Lead

Duke Snider Regains Lead From Hamner in National

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians hold a comfortable four-game lead atop the American League standings today, but the edge enjoyed by their second baseman, Bobby Avila, in the batting race appears even more secure.

Except for a single appearance as a pinch-hitter and one as a defensive replacement, Avila has been inactive because of an injured hand since June 6. However, his closest competitors have done little in the way of catching up.

The 28-year-old Mexican is batting .384. That's 39 points higher than teammate Al Rosen, in second place. The latter returned to the starting lineup Sunday after a two week layoff with a finger injury.

Nellie Fox, despite a spurt which produced 11 hits in 30 trips last week, is a poor third at .328. Frank House of Detroit dropped into the No. 4 position with a six point loss to .325. Minnie Minoso of the White Sox and Vern Stephens of Baltimore are deadlocked for fifth at .322.

In the sizzling National League scramble, Brooklyn's Duke Snider has regained the lead after relinquishing it to Philadelphia's Grady Hamner Saturday.

Snider collected three hits in eight times at bat in Sunday's two-bill against Chicago, while Hamner went one-for-nine in a doubleheader against Cincinnati and dropped to fourth place. Snider has .373 mark and Hamner is at .363. Jackie Robinson, also of the Dodgers, pulled into second place with a .365 average and Don Mueller of the New York Giants is third with .364. Robinson climbed 10 points in games last week with eight safeties in 18 at bats and Mueller gained a single point with nine hits in 24 trips.

Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals, six-time National League batting king, slumped 13 points to .357 and dropped into sixth place. However, he continues to lead in home runs with 22 and runs batted in, 71.

Ray Boone of Detroit slammed two home runs last week to dead-lock Rosen for the American League lead. Each has 13. Minoso is the loop's pace-setter in runs batted in with 57.

Ken Rosewall Only Ace Troubled in Wimbledon

Trabert and Seixas Win Easily; Buddy Ager Wins in Five Sets

By STERLING SLAPPEY

WIMBLEDON, England, June 21 (AP)—The Wimbledon tennis championships got off to a fast start today with seeded sluggers from America and Australia blasting everything in sight.

Of all the top rankers, only little, unhappy-looking Ken Rosewall of Australia had big trouble. The soulful 19-year-old who is seeded third defeated Abe Segal of South Africa 7-5, 4-6, 8-6, 8-6, after a grim struggle.

America's picture-book tennis star—No. 1 seeded Tony Trabert of Cincinnati—whipped Britain's Paul Wooler 6-0, 6-2, 6-2. Handsome Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, the defending champion, had an even easier time, defeating Geoffrey Cass, Britain 6-1, 6-0, 6-1. The charmed spell which Wimbledon seems to have regarding the weather failed to hold and rain actually fell, although not much of it.

The rain, however, didn't cool Australia's Lew Hoad, No. 2 seed; Mervyn Rose of Australia, No. 5; Art Larsen, San Leandro, Calif., No. 6; Budge Patty, the seventh-seeded Yank who lives in Paris, Los Angeles or anywhere else a tennis tournament is going on, or Rex Hartwig of Australia, seeded No. 8.

The remaining four men's seeds won just the way they were supposed to, due to the sudden decision by Wimbledon to seed 12 instead of the traditional eight. The more seeds there are the weaker the opposition in opening rounds, therefore the hot shots have less chance of being upset.

Atlanta's Buddy Ager, an Oxford University student, bounced back after losing the first two sets to defeat H. F. Walton of Britain, 4-6, 3-6, 6-0, 6-3, 6-3.

Trabert, 23-year-old, 6-4 favorite to win, was one of the few players who bothered to smile when he flubbed a shot. Wooler held a brief 2-1 lead in the second set but that was his only moment of glory.

Against Seixas, Cass broke one service and that was about all the pleasure he got out of his visit to the center court.

Hoad, another of Australia's 19-year-old wonders, had too much of everything for Giorgi Fanchini of Italy whom he defeated 6-3, 6-2, 7-5.

Rose, a lefthander, won from Britain's Tony Mottram 6-1, 6-3, 6-3 to remove the host country's top entry.

The absence of good local players, however, doesn't seem to hurt Wimbledon as it would most any other tournament and at least 30,000 fans poured through the gates.

Williams Back, But Bosox Lose Parnell Again

Condensed From Wire Reports

Ted Williams decided Monday to try it again. The Boston Red Sox slugger left Fenway Park after a brief hitting workout to join the club in Baltimore.

Williams missed the early part of the season due to a broken collarbone suffered on the first day of spring training in Sarasota, Fla. Two weeks ago the terrific hitting outfielder went to bed with pneumonia and hasn't been in uniform since June 5.

The Sox are currently battling with Baltimore for control of the American League cellar and the presence of Williams should be a lift to the stumbling Bosox.

With the news of Williams, the Red Sox also learned that pitcher Mel Parnell had a sprain in the left forearm and would be sidelined a week longer. Parnell suffered a broken arm earlier in the year.

"If your telephone conversation is prolonged, it is courteous to discontinue the conversation periodically and advise the other party you will call back."—Etiquette column quote.

When Alexander Graham Bell... forerunner of the "Tel and Tel"... first built his simple telephone... he could not possibly have known... how much his great invention would... affect us all, for bad or good.

The first ones hung upon the wall... and when a person made a call... he stood on tired and aching feet... and made his message short and sweet... then someone had a brilliant thought... and said, "I think somebody ought... to fix one so a man could sit... and rest and talk a little bit."

That did it! Now your wife and mine... can talk for hours while they recline... upon a sofa or a bed... and although what is being said... is not important they will chat... about a baby, dress or hat... the weather or a wedding date... and sometimes, they just sit and wait.

The next improvement they should make... is some contraption that would shake... 'em loose and snatch the thing away... when they have nothing more to say.

Opening lead: Ten of clubs.
 It seems paradoxical that declarer could avoid a ruff by postponing the drawing of trumps.

Declarer in today's hand managed to execute a simple little safety play when he diagnosed that the defense was trying to obtain a ruff to defeat his slam contract.

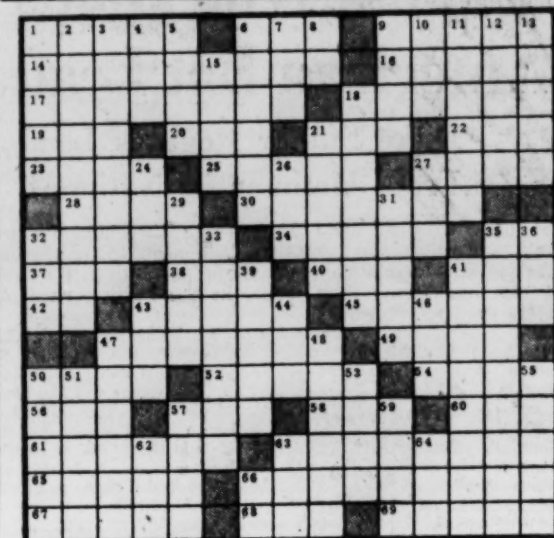

The six heart bid was the height of soundness. After North's response of two clubs, South made a jump shift of three diamonds, forcing to game and immediately suggestive of a slam. North was well primed to head toward slam but temporized momentarily with a return to three hearts, awaiting further information from partner. With hearts established as trumps, South took the precaution to check for aces, for North might have a very good aces hand. When it was established that the enemy held only one ace, South resolved the issue then and there.

After listening to South's vigorous bidding, West concluded that a spade lead held forth no prospect for the defense and decided to play upon the theory that South, in addition to hearts and diamonds, had at least two cards in his partner's suit. This would make it highly likely that East could obtain a second round ruff in clubs or conceivably the damage might be done on the first round. He therefore led the 10 of clubs. Declarer suspected the enemy plot, tho he could not tell from which side the ruff impended. An immediate trump lead would be fatal if the player with the long clubs held the ace of trumps. So declarer cashed the ace of spades, ruffed himself into Drinkers Should Pay More for Insurance?

Bill W., 45, is an insurance executive.

"Dr. Crane, a new idea has recently sprung up in automobile insurance," he told me.

"We have found that the drinking drivers cause an abnormal percentage of accidents.

"So a new policy is now being written to reward the nondrinker. If a person is thus a teetotaler and never touches alcohol, we give him a lower rate, which may amount to almost 25 per cent less.

"Don't you think this is a fair deal? Why should the nondrinker, who is a safer driver, be forced to pay for the greater hazards of the drinker?"

INSURANCE PSYCHOLOGY

It is obviously unfair to penalize the sober driver by forcing him to pay the same insurance premiums as the alcoholic who causes most of the accidents.

And we might extend that same sensible thought into the realms of fire insurance, as well as health and life insurance, too.

For most of the fires are caused by smokers, who absent-mindedly fall asleep in bed with a lighted cigarette.

Or they toss a burning cigar but or cigarette into the gutter

Diabetes Victim Learns To Live With Disease

Jim was 36 when he developed diabetes. The disease "ran in his family" and he knew more about it than does the average person.

His story is typical of so many others.

Over the previous three years, Jim had gained weight and the additional food he ate created a strain on a pancreas that was destined, through heredity, to fail. He became suspicious that something was amiss, when he began losing weight even though his appetite had improved and he was eating more food.

Jim's father suggested that his son see a physician because he had gone through the same experience some 15 years ago.

Dr. Roberts weighed Jim and measured his height. He inquired about his physical activity and then proceeded to plan a diet. Insulin was to be omitted for the time being as a dietary regimen was to be tried first. Within 10 days it was obvious that diet alone was inadequate. The original symptoms persisted and the sugar content of the blood and urine remained at a high level.

A tentative dose of insulin was decided upon and during the next two weeks, Dr. Roberts kept close tab on Jim's condition. Every other day tests were made and the amount of insulin was increased slowly until sugar disappeared from the urine.

Jim's hardest job was to give himself injections of insulin. After all, no one likes to stick himself with a needle, yet he figured that if others could do it, so could he. Furthermore, if his life depended upon insulin, he did not want to become dependent upon others to give the "shots."

Initial injections were given in the physician's office where the patient practiced on foam rubber, and then upon himself.

He discovered that the sharper the point, the less pain and instead of discarding dull needles he learned to sharpen them.

He also was taught how to test his urine for sugar and make a daily record of the results. He was advised to read books on diabetes because the more he knew about the disease, the easier it would be to take care of himself. He learned to recognize the danger signals of diabetic acidosis, and what happened when he took too much insulin.

PENALIZE THE BAD.

The same reduction should also be extended to health and life insurance policies. For it is a medical fact that smokers are far more likely to have cancer, heart trouble, Burger's disease, high blood pressure and many other medical ailments.

So insurance rates should be set accordingly. Obviously, a man should have the right to smoke or not smoke.

But if he DOES smoke, and thereby deliberately shortens his life, then the nonsmoker should not be compelled to pay higher insurance premiums to support the smoker's widow and children.

The essential principle in law is that the good should be rewarded and the bad, penalized.

So here is a big field for some smart insurance executives. Just follow this idea that is now being adopted with reference to auto insurance.

Give lower premiums to the nonsmokers, nondrinkers and to the slender folks.

By LAURA BARRE

The 88th annual meeting of the North Georgia Methodist Conference opened at Wesley Memorial Church Monday night with a memorial service honoring four ministers and eight ministers' wives who have died since last year's conference meeting.

Those honored at the services were the Rev. Julian C. Callaway Jr., the Rev. Thomas M. Elliott, the Rev. J. E. Holbrook, the Rev. John T. Robins, Mrs. Lee Allgood, Mrs. J. A. Chastain, Mrs. Frank Eakes, Mrs. Clement T. Ivey, Mrs. A. F. Nunn, Mrs. J. T. Fendley, Mrs. Frank G. Spearman and Mrs. Walter W. Watkins.

Following the memorial service, Holy Communion was administered by the Rev. Charles Boleyn, Milledgeville; the Rev. Harry Lee Smith, Rome; the Rev. Hamby Barton Jr., Oxford; the Rev. Frank Crawley, Griffin, and the Rev. V. L. Bray, Atlanta, pastor of the host church.

An estimated 800 lay and ministerial delegates attended the opening service.

Conference business sessions will begin at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday. Tuesday's schedule includes the composite report of the 10 district superintendents in the conference, to be presented by the Rev. D. L. Hagood, superintendent of the Rome district; an address by Dr. Edward McLellan of London, England, and a devotional message by Bishop Arthur J. Moore of Atlanta, who will preside at the conference.

Reports by Conference Lay Leader Walter Richard of Atlanta; Mrs. Stewart Colley of Grantville, president of the Woman's Society of Christian Service; and Conference Statistician E. H. Blackburn of Athens are also scheduled.

The conference will last through Friday.

Griffin Rips 'Equality' as Red Doctrine

Gubernatorial Candidate Marvin Griffin Monday night said, "Communists are mouthing the false doctrine of social equality in lands they covet and seek to master."

Speaking to the Lions Club at Newington, Griffin said, "A vigorous campaign against these poisonous enemies of our people is in order."

"Elect the right people to office and our institutions can and will be preserved," he added. Griffin was presented by Richard Bramblett of Newington.

Other political developments found a "Thomas County Tom Linder for Governor Club" organized at Thomasville. Henry P. Russell Jr., farmer and stockman, was elected chairman at the dinner attended by 25 persons. Joe Higgins, Thomasville construction manager, was named secretary-treasurer. The club will lead a motorcade to Hazlehurst July 3 when Linder launches his campaign.

Gubernatorial Candidate Fred Hand will address a civic club at Cuthbert Tuesday.

Rep. John Greer, candidate for lieutenant-governor, will address the Decatur Civitan Club Tuesday.

In another development Robert Noland of Douglasville qualified with the State Democratic Committee for solicitor general of the Tallapoosa circuit.

Mrs. Hanson Named Randolph-Macon Trustee

Mrs. Howell Ross Hanson of Atlanta, president and secretary of the Atlanta Biltmore Hotel, has been named a trustee of Randolph-Macon College in Lynchburg, Va.

William F. Quillian, president of the college, said her formal election to the board will be Oct. 22. He said as a board member Mrs. Hanson will make "a significant contribution to Randolph-Macon and thus to the cause of Christian higher education."

Mrs. Hanson is an alumna of Randolph-Macon. She was elected to the church board was announced by the Rev. John B. Tate, pastor. Mrs. Hanson was named Atlanta's "Woman of the Year in Business" for 1953.

Board Votes Doubled Sanitary Tax for '55

Extra $1.1 Million Will Make Operations Self-Sustaining

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Atlanta's aldermanic board Monday voted to double sanitary taxes beginning next year to provide an additional $1,100,000 annually to make sanitary operations self-sustaining. The increase will enable the city to reinstate water bill discounts, which were suspended for the year 1954.

Slots, Liquor Seized in Raid at Club

Four slot machines, a pinball machine and a quantity of liquor were seized Monday in a raid on a fashionable north Fulton County supper club by investigators from the office of Criminal Court, Solicitor John I. Kelley said.

G. A. Carter and C. R. Little, who conducted the raid on the River Ridge Supper Club, located between Sandy Springs and the Chattahoochee River, said they arrested Mrs. Evelyn Ott, 28, of 2633 E. Wesley Ter., NE. Mrs. Ott was placed under $2,500 bond on charges of possessing slot machines and under $1,000 bond on a charge of possessing whisky, records showed.

PHONES CLUB

Carter and Little said a man who identified himself as Matthew (Mickey) Bartula, operator of the club, telephoned while they were there. They said they invited the caller to come to the club.

They quoted him as saying, "You don't think I'm going to come down there and let you lock me up."

A lookout was broadcast directing that Bartula be arrested on charges of possessing slot machines and nontax-paid liquor, the investigators said.

Little and Carter said they visited the club three weeks ago and noticed the pinball machine, a bingo-type game in which the player has a chance of parlaying a 10-cent play into as much as $30.

RUBBER MATS

When they returned Monday, they said, they noticed imprints upon rubber mats spread over two tables similar to those which would be left by slot machines. They located the machines—one 10-cent, play, two 25-centers and one 50-cent—hidden in the attic, the investigators said.

Bartula, a native of Manchester, N.H., was quoted by investigators as saying he rented the club recently at $10,000 per year with an option to buy at the end of 10 years, and "needed the machines to make the venture pay."

In addition to the machines, investigators said, they found a pint of nontax-paid whisky in a half-gallon fruit jar, another jar and a pint bottle that smelled of corn liquor, and 24 bottles with pouring caps on.

Sopkin Signs Symphony Contract To Run Through '56-'57 Season

Henry Sopkin, conductor of the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra since 1945, has signed a new contract with the Atlanta Symphony Guild to extend through the 1956-57 season. Although Sopkin's previous contract had one more year to run, it was superseded by a lengthier agreement, adding two more years.

James V. Carmichael, president of the Symphony Guild, announced the reengagement of Sopkin as conductor and musical director as the Symphony Board prepared to launch its fund campaign for the 1954-55 season. The 85-piece orchestra will give 11 regular subscription concerts and five free concerts on Sundays. Twelve concerts will be given on a tour of four Southeastern states.

A $208,000 budget has been approved by the Guild for the coming season.

Northside Re-Zoning Plan Attacked As Cutting Property Value in Half

By ANNE GOWEN

Aroused home owners from the Northside Monday bombarded the Municipal Planning Board with protests that proposed re-zoning would "degrade" their property to "less than half what it's worth now."

One of their spokesmen declared: "No one can ram this reprehensive re-zoning down our throats. We will not tolerate it."

Some 150 men and women who own property just north of the Atlanta city limits crowded into the Fulton commission chamber for the planning board's first public hearing on out-of-city re-zoning.

SHARED VIEW

They apparently shared the view of L. Carson Rader of the Northwest Fulton Civic Club, who charged the re-zoning would change expensive residential areas to "lower middle-class neighborhoods."

Rader asked the planning board to raise zone classifications in the area so no residential lot could be less than 18,000 square feet.

"We bought property in this section because we wanted large lots with room to breathe," Rader said.

Under the re-zoning proposal mapped out by Harland Bartholomew Associates, city planning firm, some sections along Roswell road would be zoned R-4, the lowest of any exclusively residential area.

NOT CONSULTED

Rader said the Bartholomew firm did not consult Northside civic leaders and businessmen in formulating the proposal.

He said the re-zoning "would force hordes of people out on us."

"The area isn't prepared to support them," he said.

He said schools, sewerage, telephone service, water and roads are

Ex-State Aide To Provide Data On Hoffman Cash

TRENTON, N.J., June 21 (AP)—State Atty. Gen. Grover C. Richman Jr. said today he will question a former state treasurer in connection with the self-admitted manipulations of the late Gov. Harold G. Hoffman.

Richman declared he wanted to ask Walter T. Margetts about a $300,000 deposit made in 1949 in the South Amboy Trust Co., a bank Hoffman headed.

The amount was said by Richman to be in addition to $300,000 Hoffman confessed embezzling from the bank in a letter to his daughter, opened after his death on June 4.

Auto Crash Kills Porterdale Man

Constitution State News Service. PORTERDALE, June 21—Robert William Prince, 46, of Porterdale was killed and two other persons injured Monday in a head-on crash of two cars near Porterdale, the State Patrol said.

The crash occurred at 6 p.m. a half mile south of Porterdale on Georgia Highway 162 in Newton County.

Names of the injured were not immediately available.

The editor addressed the opening session of a week-long Ground Observer Corps seminar at Colorado College. Sixty air defense filter center commanders are meeting under Air Defense Command auspices.

"We must tell the people that an attack can come, and may come, and it will come unannounced," McGill said. "We are so used to looking under the bed that we forget sometimes to look at the sky, and the threat of a catastrophic attack has increased more rapidly than we have developed measures to combat it."

Right-of-Way Bond Fund Ready

The Fulton commission Monday approved allocation of $150,000 in bond funds to the City of Atlanta to buy right-of-way for widening Piedmont road to take care of expressway traffic.

The commission agreed to hand over the money as soon as the city is ready to buy the property.

Won't Yield On McCarthy, Flanders Says

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—Sen. Ralph E. Flanders (R-Vt.) served notice today he will force Senate action before the end of the session on his move to strip Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of his key committee chairmanship. He set a deadline of July 15.

Flanders, who has accused the Wisconsin Republican of "contempt" of the Senate, told a news conference his move is "very much alive" despite its referral to the Senate Rules Committee.

He said he has received "many expressions of support" from both Republican and Democratic senators and has "not been discouraged" from pressing his plan in "casual" talks with administration officials.

He refused, however, to name any of his supporters, declaring, "I'm not saying who's who."

Senate Republican leaders have made no secret of their hope that Flanders' resolution will remain buried in the Rules Committee until the end of the current session. They have acknowledged, however, that Flanders can launch a similar move which might force some kind of showdown vote if the rules group fails to act.

At the urging of Senate GOP leaders the resolution was referred to the Rules Committee. Chairman William E. Jenner (R-Ind.) has said he does not think his group will have time to act this year on this and another anti-McCarthy resolution by Sen. Herbert H. Lehman (D-N.Y.).

Spy Hunt Blots Threat of Attack; McGill Warns

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., June 21 (AP)—Ralph McGill, editor of The Atlanta Constitution, warned today that Americans have become so accustomed to looking for internal subversion that they often forget the Communist threat from abroad.

Moreover millions of Americans believe all we must do to be safe is to withdraw behind the nation's boundaries, McGill declared.

The editor addressed the opening session of a week-long Ground Observer Corps seminar at Colorado College. Sixty air defense filter center commanders are meeting under Air Defense Command auspices.

"We must tell the people that an attack can come, and may come, and it will come unannounced," McGill said. "We are so used to looking under the bed that we forget sometimes to look at the sky, and the threat of a catastrophic attack has increased more rapidly than we have developed measures to combat it."

Boys State Candidates Find Races Wide Open

Political activity was hot and heavy at Georgia Tech Monday as the 12 mythical cities of Boys State elected their officers.

It was the first official election at the American Legion-sponsored school of citizenship and politics which is held here every year. In crowded closed room sessions (but without cigar smoke) the two political parties—the Nationalists and Federalists—began to take shape early in the day.

The 290 Boys State citizens from all over Georgia held party conventions, elected the mayors, city councilmen and recorders from the 12 cities of the state, then settled back to the bigger business of preparing for county and state elections.

NEW SYSTEM

There is a change this year from the way the state has been governed since its beginning in 1940. In past years the political parties elected one candidate for each of the state offices. This year the races are wide open. Any candidate who can secure 20 signatures of members of his party can run for office. The candidates for the final election will be selected in primary elections. The top offices are governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state treasurer, attorney general, comptroller general, state superintendent of schools and seven Supreme Court justiceships.

Robert Joiner, director of Boys State, explained that the system was changed this year to conform with the way things are done in Georgia. (It also appeared likely from the interest of several potential governor candidates that the race at the Flats may be almost as crowded as Georgia's gubernatorial race.)

The 28 American Legionnaires who are acting as counselors in this session will also pick two boys on the basis of individual leadership to attend Boys Nation in Washington, D.C., the last week in July.

HEAR TALKS

Tuesday, the citizens of Boys State will attend lectures on the operation of county government to be given by Scott Candler of DeKalb County (on the one-man commission system) and Tom Camp of Fulton County (on the three and five-commissioner systems). Afterwards the political campaigns will begin in earnest for county elections.

Monday the big news at Georgia Tech, which provides dormitories, athletic fields and equipment and other facilities for the annual gathering, was election of city officers. Newly named mayors of 12 towns were Ted Denney of Newnan, Davey Wilkes of Savannah, Sam Folkes of Atlanta, Eugene Stripling of Albany, Wallace Keeble of LaGrange, Michael Young of Clayton, Gene Broome of Griffin, Ace Adams of Douglas, W. B. Carroll of Statesboro, Roswell Walburn of LaGrange, Norman Collins of Manchester and DeSales Pickney of Savannah.

Others elected in Monday's race were: Records: Douglas Williams, Crawfordville; Paul S. Blane, College Park; Moran, Manchester; Jimmy Burchett, Commerce.

Chief Herbert Jenkins said the accident amounted to very little—that Sikes started to pull around a bus and was crowded by an oncoming vehicle, causing the right rear fender of the patrol car to scrape the bus. Damage was listed at $15.

"Sikes insisted that the accident was chargeable and that he be treated like everyone else," Jenkins said.

Sikes, who has the responsibility of keeping traffic moving over the 134-square-mile Atlanta area, agreed there are certain advantages in being a plain citizen.

"You just sit back and let someone else worry about traffic," he said.

Don't Be Misled...

An Open Letter to the People of Atlanta

ATLANTA PACKARD MOTORS, INC.
370 PEACHTREE STREET, N.E.
ATLANTA 3, GEORGIA

Dear friends:

A fellow never gets something for nothing. (Although there have been cases of getting nothing for something.) All these claims of "wild trades" and "discounts" sound too much like the "something for nothing" angle to us. We've been around long enough to have seen a lot of them. We've seen them come and we've seen them go.

We think the people of Atlanta want to be sure about such a big investment as an automobile. Atlantans want to be sure of the car, the deal — and the dealer. That's why we offer you an attractive trade-in on an outstanding Packard-built car — but we offer it to you without kicking up a fuss about it!

And after the sale is made, you can depend on us for the best service you will get anywhere.

Remember, after the confusion is gone and the dust has settled — we'll still be offering a good deal on a fine car.

Sincerely

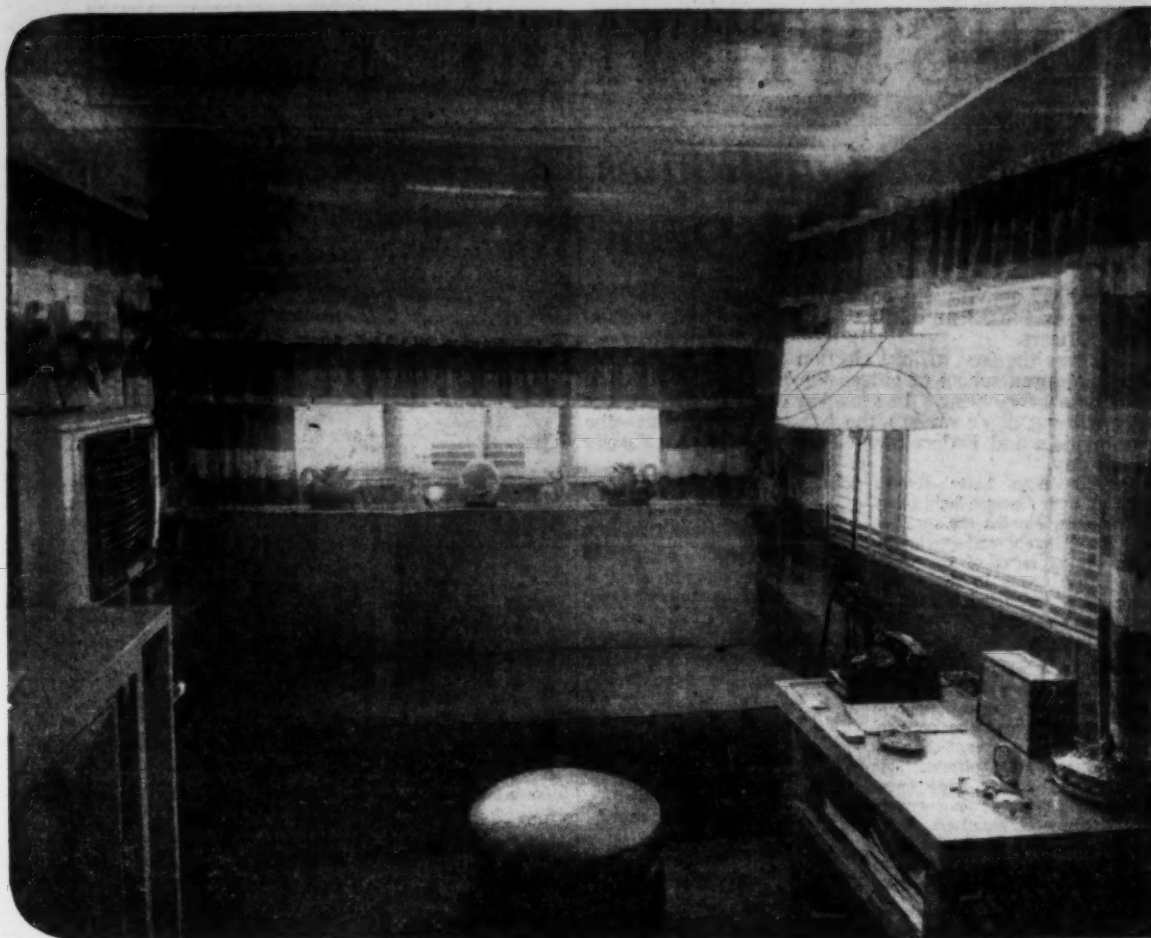

Geo. M. Couch

Furniture Quality Stressed

CHICAGO, June 21 (AP)—Greater emphasis on quality and usefulness—and less on prices—keynoted the opening of the summer home furnishings market today.

"The illusion that the consumer can get something for nothing has been magnified and distorted," James C. Law of Bloomsburg, Pa., chairman of the board of the Carpet Institute, said at a news conference.

"We are convinced that we can present our product on the basis of desire, need and its benefits without resorting to price advertising."

BETTER VALUES

A representative of the furniture industry reported that "most manufacturers have been working for months on new patterns—trying to figure ways and means of giving better value."

The spokesman, Burton R. Tuxford, vice president of the Drexel Furniture Co., Drexel, N. C., added:

"Manufacturers have become more conscious of changing consumer needs and desires. More furniture is being made to accommodate this changing way of life and to fit the newer styled homes. Lighter shades in wood finishes and many pastel shades in enamel are being produced; dual purpose pieces are being given greater attention, with finishes made tougher to withstand greater abuse."

A similar feeling in the appliance field was expressed by Judson S. Sayre, president of the Norge Division, Borg-Warner Corp., Chicago.

PERFORMANCE CITED

"Manufacturers," he said: "Have a responsibility to design products which can be sold on features and performance. Anybody can build a poorer piece of merchandise for less money."

Tuxford said he considered current business to be "good by any yardstick except the boomiest boom year of all time" and predicted that furniture sales in the fall will be "very good."

He based his outlook on two factors:

"1. Savings of consumers are at a point close to a record peak and spendable income is near the highest on record."

"2. New home starts are at an almost record high."

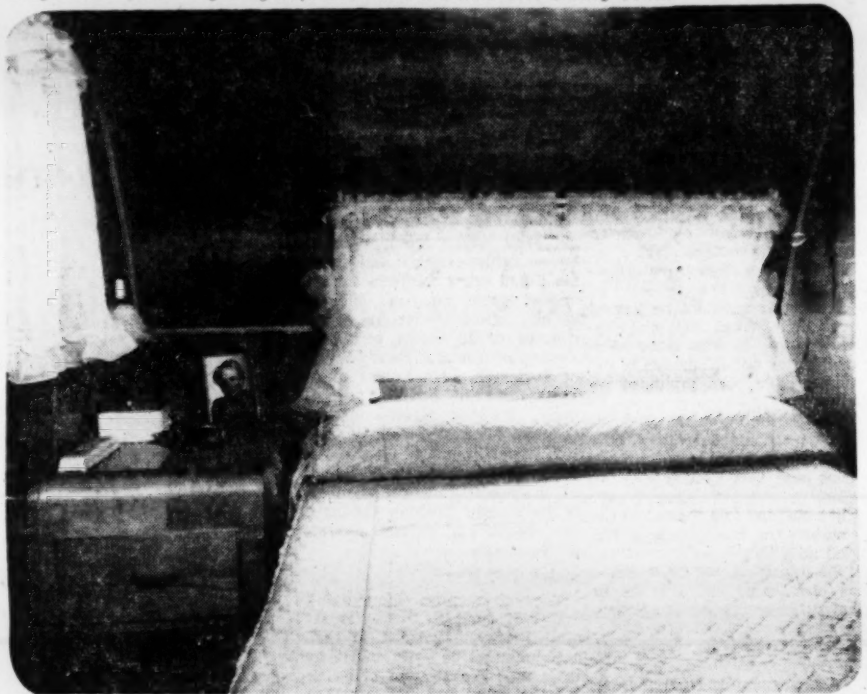

Tuxford declared that "A buying spree at this market is not an impossibility."

The two-week market, at the Merchandise Mart and the American Furniture mart, is a private showing of samples to buyers for retail houses. The general public is not admitted. Goods shown now will appear in retail store showrooms in late autumn.

Mobile Home Tethered on Route 48

By DOTTY LUNDY

After living in a home, cabin and hotel over a period of 40 years, the Paul S. Andersons have decided a home on wheels is the life for them. As Mr. Anderson puts it, it's like running a home in a doll house.

Their mobile home, which is tethered in a trailer park at 1780 Stewart Ave., SE, is complete with living room, kitchen-breakfast room, bath and bedroom, plus extras like air conditioning and indirect lighting.

The Andersons moved in about a year ago. As yet they haven't set the wheels rolling but they expect to do lots of traveling when Mr. Anderson, a railroad man, retires some day.

Their mobile home is 35 feet long, maximum length without requiring a permit to drive through cities. Other models vary from 15 to 50 feet. There's room for everything.

PANELED INTERIOR

The interior has blond birch paneling with rubber tile floors. Pink and gray metallic curtains harmonize with the gray sofa bed in the living room. Kitchen is next with built-in leatherette seats around a stationery table.

The bedroom occupies the rear back of closets and bath. Every inch of space is utilized with cabinets under the seats in the kitchen, above and below the sink. There are two exits, from living room and bedroom.

There's always room for company, too. The Andersons frequently have some of their neighbors over for a meal, usually serving them under the awnings from the portable barbecue.

GARDEN BUILDING

When the Andersons bought their trailer, they found themselves parked squarely in a mud flat. Now Mr. Anderson has a picket fence to enclose petunias, tulips, gladioli, and even a row of beans and tomatoes. The green lawn boasts a bird bath and a gazing globe. He even built a tool shed at the end of the terrace.

Trailer folk are friendly folk and the Andersons have a fond feeling for their community. A cartoon is tenderly framed on their corner shelves depicting a cross stitched maxim "God Bless Highway 48."

Ike's Cottage In Miniature Takes Tour

By the Associated Press
A house only 12 inches high is attracting attention on television and tour.

Its exterior, which lifts off in one piece, is a miniature of the Little White House, vacation retreat of President and Mrs. Eisenhower in Augusta, Ga.

The five rooms are a designer's delight, decorated to provide ideas for gracious living by the average American family.

It took an industrial designer and five associates some 1,800 man hours to complete the house, which is 46 inches wide and 22 inches deep.

Presenting the Little White House to cross-country audiences is its originator, Lynn Scott. The tour, which started last April and will continue through July, 1955, will reach at least 30,000 persons in 30 cities.

Miss Scott, director of a home arts council, made sure the Colonial exterior of the house accurately copied the Eisenhower residence. The columned portico boasts an American Eagle emblem, and the flooring has the five stars of the President's military rank.

The outside is complete with a miniature apple tree, bearing 40 red apples, and white flower pots overflowing with red geraniums.

Inside, everything is built at a scale of one-half inch to the foot. The house has such items as a Colonial staircase, a fireplace that is an exact replica of one in the ladies' parlor in Raleigh Tavern in Williamsburg, Va., a movable television cabinet and a sofa-bed.

The Favorite of Millions Since 1919

Celestine Sibley Hammock Top Vacation Spot

A vacation is a most educational period in a person's life. The opportunities for learning and improving one's mind are boundless but there's something terribly frustrating about it, too. You don't realize what you've learned until about 10 minutes before you're due back at work and then it's 50 weeks, 12 hours and 18 minutes before you can put your new-found knowledge into practice.

However, I'm not stingy. I'm going to share my findings with all you lucky souls who still have that precious Two Weeks ahead of you.

First, the one perfect place to spend a vacation is in a hammock. There's simply no point in exercising yourself rushing around to resorts, fighting traffic and glare and dust and looking at sights. Just string your hammock up between two trees, equip yourself with a jug of insect spray (you be the judge of whether a jug of something else is called for), a book or two, and, if you're in the mountains, a blanket to ward off the twilight chill. You're set for your vacation.

Now you may have ideas about where you want your hammock. The back yard may turn out to be as good a place as any. But I'm partial to a couple of spruce trees outside a little cabin on Holly Creek in the north Georgia mountains. They support a hammock beautifully, they smell wonderful and they make an excellent frame for all the sightseeing that ought to be done on anybody's vacation. Between those two blue-green spires there's a very great deal that's worth looking at. The oak trees tower above them making their own leafy lace against the sky.

The little poplar tree makes a place for itself. (Did you ever notice how a poplar leaf in silhouette looks like a cup and saucer?) The rhododendron lifts its bud-heavy branches and you have a feeling that if you watch long enough and closely enough you'll see the creamy, tightly folded buds slowly open. (They are opening in the mountains now and the morning you find the first cluster of rhododendron fully open with dew hanging like prisms from the ivory blossoms and bees droning drunkenly in the depths of the golden heart, it's like discovering your baby's first tooth or a dollar you didn't know you had under the sofa cushion.)

Anyhow, to get back to the hammock. If you keep it moving ever so slightly it's possible to enlarge the scope of your vision to take in the road and the little creek where the rainbow trout flash through the little waterfalls as happily as if they had Niagara at their disposal. You can see a little trickle of blue smoke coming out of your clever chimney—and nothing smells quite so heavenly as a dogwood log burning slowly in an old stone fireplace.

But without moving a tad you can look at the sky and I guess it was Mr. Thoreau who pointed out that the best show on earth goes on there all day and far, far into the night. You can see the first stars come out and the moon come up and hear a giddy mockingbird imitating his betters at the most improbable hours of the night.

It's enough for anybody's vacation—saying you get in a little reading, an old book or two and, if you feel reckless, something new. But the trouble is, you don't find these things out in time. Oh, of course, I did get in the hammock some during the last two weeks. In fact, there was 20 minutes on not one but two separate afternoons when I was able to beat the children to it.

Mental Outlook Helps In Slimming Program

By IDA JEAN KAIN

For the overweight who has repeatedly tried to diet and has become disheartened and desperate, the solution is to take a completely fresh approach to the problem of weight control.

The writer of today's letter has a tendency to be heavy, since her grandmother weighed more than 300 pounds and her mother 280 pounds. She herself weighs 180 pounds.

"I vow that at 200 pounds I am going to put myself out of the picture. I look and feel best at 150 pounds, but don't know what I should do to get back there, for I haven't weighed that since I was 16, some 22 years ago."

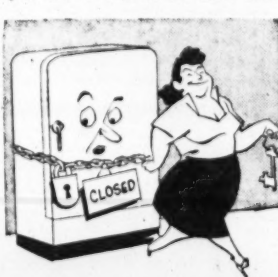

"I would pay a hundred dollars for every pound I could lose, if I had it to pay, and for every amount of food I could resist. Is there any hope for me?"

POSSIBLE TO SLIM

Your mistake is that you are constantly keeping in mind what you do not want! It is poignantly clear that you earnestly desire to reduce. If you will believe that it is possible for you to slim down those 30 pounds, then one wonderful day, you will weigh 150.

Do not struggle to "diet." Instead, go at this from the standpoint of eating for normal weight and changing your food habits. Obviously the subconscious part of your mind, which is the deep seat of habit, balks at the idea of diet.

Apparently you have habituated your inner mind to get you out of diet at all cost. You cannot, through sheer force of will power, make yourself stay with a diet for long.

TAKE FRESH SLANT

Then what can you do? Make a vivid mental picture of what you want. At night, as you drift into sleep, see yourself in the size 16 dress you would wear at 150 pounds. Study the science of nutrition that makes it possible to turn excess pounds back into energy. Appreciate the calorie yardstick and apply it to eating.

Once you take a new, fresh slant and believe in yourself, you become enthusiastic. Then slimming down is a stimulating challenge. Think positively, anticipating success.

The day you make that inner

Farmer Repays $1,000 But Fails To Sign Name

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—The Agriculture Department is looking for the farmer who sent in $1,000 to pay off a debt and forgot to sign his name.

Secretary Benson told newsmen of the incident as he showed them the $500 bill and five $100 bills the farmer enclosed with this short message: "Enclosed find $1,000 for past due seed loan and give credit on account."

The postmark on the envelope was stamped Culbertson, Mont. Benson said he is confident that department field officers will be able to trace the farmer.

Post Mortem Ordered in Auto Death

A post mortem examination was ordered Monday to determine the cause of death of Samuel L. Huskey, 55, of 1384 Lanvale Dr., SW, who was injured in traffic Saturday.

Pt. S. D. Harbin and P. F. Young said Huskey, a barber, was driving an auto that was involved in a collision with another car at Donnelly Ave. and Lawton St., SW. Two other persons were injured.

After the crash, Huskey complained of back pains but said he did not think he was injured severely enough to require hospital treatment, patrolmen said. They added he became ill Sunday and was pronounced dead upon arrival at Georgia Baptist Hospital.

The death will not be listed as a traffic fatality until the exact cause of death can be established, officers said.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday at the Oakland City Baptist Church. The Rev. Guy Owen will officiate. Burial will be in George Washington Memorial Cemetery in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Sylvia B. Betsell, 46, of 3402 Patrick Ct., NW, driver of the second auto involved, was charged with overrunning a red light and accident.

It Takes Workmen Just 9½ Hours To Put Up Walls of 22-Story Building

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—Sixty-one workmen put up the aluminum walls of a 22-story office building today in 9½ hours, while hundreds of sidewalk superintendents gawked in amazement.

The thin, prefabricated sheets of aluminum, each one two stories high, were bolted into place at the rate of a story every 38 minutes.

Norman Tishman, president of the realty company that is building the new structure at 57th street and Park avenue, said the job normally would have taken eight to 10 weeks.

But the rush job was arranged to dramatize the case of the new sheathing method, he said. The wall panels were made from special aluminum sheeting.

The metal panels, two stories high, four and a half feet wide and one-eighth inch thick, were swung into place with block and tackle. The workmen started at 6 a.m., knocked off for lunch for half an hour, and finished the job at 4 p.m.

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—The stock market waded through a lot of irregularity today and managed to close slightly higher.

The entire performance was not one to encourage either the bulls or the bears. It was just another day of marking time at peak levels.

The market started higher and ran into irregularity almost immediately. Some strong areas stood out while a number of major divisions were lagged throughout. Motors and steels were leaders together with the aircrafts and electrical equipments.

The radio-television issues were usually lower and many minor signs appeared in the railroads, chemicals, oils and utilities.

MERGER NEWS HELPS

Lively trading cropped up at the opening in motors when Studebaker opened on 7,000 shares up 1/4 and Packard was on the tape with 6,100 shares unchanged on the heels of news that they had reached an understanding on plans for a merger. Studebaker closed up 1/4 at 19 and Packard remained unchanged at 37.

Tobacco shares were depressed fractionally. Late in the session, the American Cancer Society released a new study on the relationship between smoking, cancer and heart disease.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 10 cents and reached its second straight new high mark at $126, the best level since October of 1929.

The industrial component advanced 30 cents, and the railroads were up 20 cents, while the utilities declined 10 cents. That indicated a hesitant and somewhat mixed advance.

VOLUME IMPROVED

The balance was shown even more clearly by the fact that 435 stocks advanced and 426 declined out of the 1,161 individual issues traded. Fifty-two new highs for the year were reached while six new lows were touched.

Volume came to 1,820,000 shares as compared with 1,580,000 shares traded Friday when the market was up slightly.

Trading was heavy with prices mixed on the American Stock Exchange with special attention paid to oil and gas issues. They were hit hard on Friday when the Federal Power Commission in Washington favored the use of United States natural gas in the Pacific Northwest and not Canadian gas. Today they were mixed.

Pacific Petroleum, down sharply last week, opened today on 19-100 shares up 1/4 at 7 1/2, and it closed at the same price. Among lower stocks were Canadian Atlantic Oil, North Canadian Oil, Molybdenum, Pantepec Oil and Pittsburgh Metallurgical.

Towns Hits 140 Pct. Of E-Bond Quota

By JIM MONTGOMERY

Little Towns County in north Georgia, nestled against the Tennessee border, is showing its heels to the rest of the state this year in the Treasury Department's U.S. Savings Bonds program.

Not that the people of Towns have spent more money on bonds than the residents of other Georgia counties. Not by a long shot. But by the end of May they had oversubscribed their goal of $40,000 for the entire year by nearly $16,000. That's 40 per cent ahead of the goal—and they still have seven months to tally up.

Georgia as a whole, however, is lagging about 5 per cent behind schedule in its 1954 bond buying, according to Joseph G. Woodruff, state director of the U.S. Savings Bonds program.

$63 MILLION GOAL

With a goal of $63.1 million in Series E and H Bonds this year, Georgians had purchased nearly $23 million worth through the end of May, or about 36.4 per cent of the goal compared to a national attainment so far of 39 per cent.

Not that Woodruff's worried about the state reaching the goal set for this year, since two of the year's three biggest months—January, July and December—still lie ahead.

January and July are big months, he explained, because annual and semiannual dividend payments at those times stimulate bond sales. Christmas giving, of course, pushes December bond buying.

He said the goals for each state and county are based on population, income and past performance.

Woodruff pointed out, incidentally, that from 1950 to 1952 the Southeast recorded a gain of 20 per cent in per capita spendable income, the greatest increase for any region.

FULTON SALES HIT 2 MILLION

The general bond salesman noted that in May sales in Fulton County totaled $2,081,485, or 44 per cent of the $4.7 million sold in the state that month. The county has to date accounted for 26.3 per cent of its 1954 quota of $23,150,000, which is more than one-third of the state quota.

He also said that in addition to Towns, only one other of Georgia's 159 counties had achieved its annual goal at the end of May. Fayette County reached the mark with $55,000 worth so far this year.

Although savings bonds do not by any means represent all the ways in which people save their money, they do serve as a barometer of the fact that Georgians are financially able to salt funds away for a rainy day while at the same time spending more money than ever before.

And that means there's certainly nothing seriously wrong with the economy this year.

Hog Price Trends Vary

Hog price trends varied geographically in Monday's trading, with the market 50 cents higher at plants in Atlanta, and mostly steady but 50 cents to $1 lower at one plant in the Georgia-Florida-Alabama peanut belt.

North Georgia cattle auctions are not held until late afternoon, so no Monday trends were established. In sales late Friday, however, prices ruled about steady, with calves 50 cents higher.

Call Prisoner Hearing, Talmadge Tells Official

Gov. Talmadge ordered unprecedented legal action Monday to force an elected county official to "perform his duties."

Talmadge directed the attorney general to bring mandamus action against McDuffie County Ordinary J. D. Baston, forcing him to hold another habeas corpus hearing for W. R. Delsinski.

Delsinski, convicted of kidnapping in 1933, was freed by Baston in 1949 on petition for a writ of habeas corpus charging he had completed his minimum sentence with time off for good behavior.

The state, however, refused to approve his release four times in State Supreme Court hearings, saying he had twice escaped confinement and was not entitled to freedom. Each time the court ordered him to appear for another hearing.

DATE REFUSED
Baston refused to set a date for another hearing in compliance with the Supreme Court rulings, the governor's executive order said.

Delsinski is now in Florida, and a request for his extradition to Georgia has been refused by the Florida governor.

He was sentenced in 1933 to 21 years' minimum imprisonment on four charges after the kidnapping of the late John K. Otley Sr., Atlanta banker.

Talmadge told his news conference that he had never before had to take such action against an elected official, and that he was powerless to order him to do anything.

"All I can do is direct the attorney general to require him to perform his duties," the governor said.

Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook said, in a statement, that the action was necessary because the prisoner has "openly and notoriously defied the sovereign state of Georgia," and must be made to answer orders of the State Supreme Court.

Rep. Davis Urges Early Action on Coffee Controls

Constitution Washington Bureau

Separate measures on the subject have already been passed by both the House and Senate but no final agreement has been reached in conference.

Davis reminded the House that the price of coffee has gone up 40 to 50 cents a pound in the past year.

"Congress should realize that it costs American consumers 50 million dollars for every one-cent increase in the price of coffee," he declared in a speech inserted in the Congressional Record.

Are You a Slave to Eyeglasses?

Free booklet explains how you can see without glasses!

Atlanta (Special) — A European scientist has invented a new type of corneal contact lens, which revolutionizes visual aids and may enable millions of Americans who are now slaves to glasses to actually throw them away. The secret of the radical difference and superiority of the lens lies in a specially ground and polished recessed and domed central portion, which prevents the lens from touching the most sensitive part of the eye—its center. Visual discomfort and poor sight can now be improved far better than with glasses. The lens is absolutely invisible. No fluids or impressions are required. Persons who wear thick glasses with strong corrections; post-cataract cases and cases of Keratoconus, mixed astigmatism, strong farsightedness and nearsightedness can now be corrected far better than with glasses. Write or phone for your copy of the interesting Booklet "The Truth About Contact Lenses" to Research Director, Atlanta Invisible Contact Lens Service, Volunteer Bldg., 66 Luckie St., Suite 323, Atlanta, Ga.
